Memory and Spatiality in Post-Millennial Spanish Narrative

LORRAINE RYAN

ASHGATE
Contents

Acknowledgements viii

Introduction 1

1 Degenerative Space, Fertility, and Post-Transitional Justice in Dulce Chacón’s Cielos de barro 51

2 The City and the Body in Ángeles López’s Martina, la rosa número trece 75

3 The Nullification of Domestic Space in Alberto Méndez’s “Los girasoles ciegos” 99

4 Spatial Assimilation and the Corruption of the Child in Emili Teixidor’s Pan negro 117

5 A Resistant Barcelona: Hidden Transcripts in Carlos Ruiz Zafón’s La sombra del viento 139

6 Rurality, the Second Space, and Global Memory Structures in Bernardo Atxaga’s El hijo del acordeonista 159

7 Rememory, Hybridity, and in-between Space in José María Merino’s La sima 177

Conclusion 197

Bibliography 207

Index 233