Planning Across Borders in a Climate of Change

Edited by Wendy Steele, Tooran Alizadeh, Leila Eslami-Andargoli and Silvia Serrao-Neumann

Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK
Contents

List of illustrations vii
List of contributors viii

1 Shifting borders in a climate of change 1
   WENDY STEELE

SECTION I
Borders in theory 13

2 Rethinking borders 15
   MICHAEL NEUMAN

3 Troubling the place of the border: on territory, community, space and place 31
   JEAN HILLIER

4 The border/planning nexus 43
   ENRICO GUALINI AND CAROLA FRICKE

SECTION II
Borders in (international) practice 57

5 Beyond urban-rural boundaries: encouraging inter-municipal collaboration for climate change adaptation in KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa 59
   HAYLEY LECK AND FLORENCE CRICK

6 Crossing borders: two contrasting approaches to interactions between natural and human ecosystems 74
   LEILA ESLAMI-ANDARGOLI AND PAT DALE
Contents

7 Inter-sectoral and inner-sectoral borders across critical infrastructure: Lessons from the United States and Australia
TOORAN ALIZADEH AND NEIL SIPE

8 Governance by re-bordering: comparing the rescaling of territorial boundaries as a spatial governance strategy in Auckland, Brisbane/South East Queensland, Vancouver, London and Manchester
CLARE MOUAT AND JAGO DODSON

SECTION III
Australian urban borders

9 Questions of borders and mobility: de- and re-territorialising approaches to urban and regional planning policy and governance
FELICITY WRAY AND RAE DUFTY-JONES

10 Planning across multiple borders
KRISTIAN RUMING AND DONNA HOUSTON

11 Beyond the boundaries of strategic interest
CRYSTAL LEGACY, SIMON PINNEGAR, ANDREW TICE AND ILAN WIESEL

12 Competing processes of border-making: compact city planning and residents’ everyday territorialisation of home
NICOLE COOK, ELIZABETH TAYLOR AND JOE HURLEY

SECTION IV
Border futures

13 Emerging planetary boundaries and the sustainability perspective
SILVIA SERRAO-NEUMANN

14 Transgressing borders: imagining environmental justice in spatial planning
JASON BYRNE AND DIANA MACCALLUM

15 Virtual borders in the online world: How e-planning helps and hinders communicative planning practice
MARCO AMATI

Index
Illustrations

Figures

6.1 Locality map of Lake Urmia, northwestern Iran 76
6.2 Locality map of intertidal wetlands, southeast Queensland and northern New South Wales, Australia 80
12.1 Resident opposition to HDH, City of Manningham, Melbourne 165
12.2 Applications with objections, by SEIFA ranking of suburb 170
12.3 Number of rejections received, by VCAT appeal type 171
15.1 The distortionary effect of e-planning on the actions of individuals in a communicative setting 215

Tables

6.1 Comparison of characteristics of the case studies 85
7.1 Contextual differences between Australia and the United States 93
7.2 Comparison of Australia's three largest cities 98
7.3 Summary of telecommunications and metropolitan planning borders: Australia and the United States 100
7.4 Summary of transportation and urban planning borders: Australia and the United States 101
8.1 Characteristics of the approaches to metropolitan governance 111
12.1 Reasons residents objected to HDH in their street 166
14.1 Environmental justice issues and border crossings 193
15.1 Interviewee roles and organisation 210