Rethinking Colonial Pasts through Archaeology

Edited by

NEAL FERRIS, RODNEY HARRISON, AND MICHAEL V. WILCOX

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

List of Tables and Figures viii
List of Contributors xi

Introduction: Rethinking Colonial Pasts through the Archaeologies of the Colonized 1
Neal Ferris, Rodney Harrison, and Matthew A. Beaudoin

Part I Ambiguous Definitions and Discordances

1. Shared Histories: Rethinking 'Colonized' and 'Colonizer'
in the Archaeology of Colonialism 37
   Rodney Harrison

2. Archaeologies of Indigenous Survivance and Residence: Navigating
   Colonial and Scholarly Dualities 57
   Stephen W. Silliman

3. Native-lived Colonialism and the Agency of Life Projects:
   A View from the Northwest Coast 76
   Jeff Oliver

4. Pruning Colonialism: Vantage Point, Local Political Economy,
   and Cultural Entanglement in the Archaeology of Post-1415
   Indigenous Peoples 103
   Kurt A. Jordan

Part II Colonizing and Decolonizing Spaces, Places, Things, and Identities

5. The Nature of Culture: Sites, Ancestors, and Trees in the Archaeology of Southern Mozambique 123
   M. Dores Cruz

6. Indigenous Archaeology and the Pueblo Revolt of 1680: Social Mobility and Boundary Maintenance in Colonial Contexts 150
   Michael V. Wilcox
Contents

7. Hiding in Plain Sight: Engineered Colonial Landscapes and Indigenous Reinvention on the New Mexican Frontier
   Jun Sunseri 173

8. Frontier Forts, Ambiguity, and Manifest Destiny: The Changing Role of Fort Lane in the Cultural Landscape of the Oregon Territory, 1853–1929
   Mark Tveskov and Amy Cohen 191

9. Imperial Anxiety and the Dissolution of Colonial Space and Practice at Fort Moore, South Carolina
   Charles R. Cobb and Stephanie Sapp 212

10. Intimacy and Distance: Life on the Australian Aboriginal Mission
    Jane Lydon 232

    Diana DiPaolo Loren 251

12. Persistent Pots, Durable Kettles, and Colonialist Discourse: Aboriginal Pottery Production in French Colonial Basse Louisiane and the pays d’en haut
    Rob Mann 268

Part III Displacement, Hybridity, and Colonizing the Colonial

    Audrey Horning 293

14. The Process of Hybridization among the Labrador Métis
    Matthew A. Beaudoin 315

15. Archaeology and the ‘Tensions of Empire’
    James A. Delle 333
Contents

   Mark W. Hauser and Stephan Lenik
   348

Part IV Contested Pasts and Contemporary Implications

17. Being Iroquoian, Being Iroquois: A Thousand-year Heritage of Becoming
   Neal Ferris
   371

18. Archaeology Taken to Court: Unravelling the Epistemology of Cultural Tradition in the Context of Aboriginal Title Cases
   Andrew Martindale
   397

19. Being 'Indigenous' and Being 'Colonized' in Africa: Contrasting Experiences and Their Implications for a Postcolonial Archaeology
   Paul J. Lane
   423

20. Deconstructing Archaeologies of African Colonialism: Making and Unmaking the Subaltern
    Peter R. Schmidt
    445

Commentary and Afterword

21. Commentary: Subaltern Archaeologies
    Peter van Dommelen
    469

22. Commentary: The Archaeology of the Colonized and Global Archaeological Theory
    Chris Gosden
    476

23. Afterword: Vantage Points in an Archaeology of Colonialism
    Ann B. Stahl
    483

Index

501
List of Tables and Figures

Table 6.1. Population estimates of the Pueblos 1539–1638, organized by Entrada

Table 8.1. Manufacturer, place of origin, and dates of production of selected artifacts recovered from Fort Lane

Figure 1.1. Aboriginal shearing team, Corunna Downs, 1906. Courtesy State Library of Western Australia, Battye Library 001304D.

Figure 1.2. Distributing rations to Aboriginal people, Yarrie Station, 1911. Courtesy State Library of Western Australia, Battye Library 013953PD.

Figure 1.3. Belt buckles, trouser buttons, and a boot plate recovered from excavations and surface collections at Old Lamboo Station.

Figure 1.4. (a) Map showing hypothetical model of precontact Aboriginal patterns of movement and exchange along the Macleay River based on archaeological site patterning (after Godwin 1999). (b) Map showing the ways in which early pastoral tracks and settlements mapped on to the same pattern of movement along the river.

Figure 2.1. Location of study area in the northeastern United States with Connecticut highlighted in dark shade and the reservation location noted therein. Map produced by the author.

Figure 2.2. Photograph of remnants of an early to middle nineteenth-century house on the Eastern Pequot reservation, excavated in 2009. Photograph by the author.

Figure 2.3. Buckle, buttons, and beads recovered from late eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century houses on the Eastern Pequot reservation, excavated in 2004 and 2005. Photograph by the author.

Figure 3.1. Map of the British Columbia coast, showing places discussed in the text. Map drawn by Jenny Johnston.

Figure 3.2. Photograph of Metlakatla 'row houses' c.1880s. Image C-08,105, courtesy of Royal BC Museum, BC Archives. Photographer unknown.

Figure 3.3. Photograph of grave house, showing associated memorial. Image 1-52,703, courtesy of Royal BC Museum, BC Archives. Photograph by John William Clark.

Figure 3.4. Billy Sepass' map of the lower Chilliwack River c.1918. Source: Oliver (2010). Adapted from Wells (1987: 79), drawn by Ana Jorge.