RESEARCH PAPERS

Defining Common Ground: Managing Diversity Through Electronic Meeting Systems
Laku Chidambaram and Judith A. Kautz, University of Hawaii
--- 1

Electronic Mail as a Medium for Rich Communication: An Empirical Investigation Using Hermeneutic Interpretation
Allen S. Lee, University of Cincinnati
--- 13

Establishing Visions in Context: Toward a Model of Requirements Processes
Mathias Jarke and Klaus Pohl, Informatik V, RWTH Aachen
--- 23

An Exploration of the Role of Diverse Cultures on the Information Requirements Determination Process
Robert L. Leitheiser, University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, and Nadya A. Fouad, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee
--- 35

Is Information Systems Spending Productive? New Evidence and New Results
Erik Brynjolfsson and Lorin Hitt, Massachusetts Institute of Technology
--- 47

Markets and Privacy
Kenneth C. Laudon, New York University
--- 65

Dampening Status Influence Using a Group Support System: An Empirical Study
Bernard C. Y. Tan and Kwok-Kee Wei, National University of Singapore, and Richard T. Watson, University of Georgia
--- 77

A Process Study of Effects of GSS and Task Type on Informational and Normative Influence in Small Groups
Wei Huang, K. S. Raman, and K. K. Wei, National University of Singapore
--- 91

Outsourcing or Insourcing?
Tapio Reponen, The Turku School of Economics and Business Administration
--- 103

Interorganizational Cooperation: The Role of Information Technology in Empirical Comparison of US and Japanese Supplier Relations
M. Bensaou, INSEAD
--- 117

Information Technology and Organizational Structure Revisited: Implications for Performance
Louis Raymond, Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières, Guy Paré, Florida International University, and François Bergeron, Université Laval
--- 129

Investigating Information Systems Strategic Alignment
Yolande E. Chan, Queen’s University, and Sid L. Huff, University of Western Ontario ................. 345

Decision Criteria in the Adoption of EDI
Lyne Bouchard, Université Laval .............................................................. 365

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

An Exploration of the Relationship Between Business Process Redesign and Information Technology Infrastructures
Victoria L. Mitchell, North Carolina State University ............................................. 377

Reinventing the IS Organization: New Practices for Managing Information Technology
Cynthia M. Beath, Southern Methodist University, Dale L. Goodhue, University of Minnesota, and Jeanne W. Ross, Worcester Polytechnic Institute ......................... 378

Outsourcing Information Technology in the United Kingdom:
Toward New Shapes of Organization
Guy Fitzgerald, University of London, and Leslie Willcocks, Oxford University ................... 379

Task Satisfaction in Groups: A Closure Approach
M. Venkatesh, Ruth V. Small, and Jacques C. Verville, Syracuse University ......................... 381

Laboratory Studies of IS Failure as Escalating Commitment to a Failing Course of Action: Overcoming the Obstacles
Mark Keil and Richard Mixon, Georgia State University .............................................. 382

The Themes of Power and Trust in EDI Relationships
Paul J. Hart and Carol S. Saunders, Florida Atlantic University ................................. 383

Determinants of the Demand for Microcomputer Software: An Econometric Analysis
Erik Brynjolfsson and Chris F. Kemerer, Massachusetts Institute of Technology ..................... 384

An Exploration of Schema Development in Procedure-Oriented Programmers Learning Object-Oriented Technology
Mary Lynn Manns, University of North Carolina at Asheville, and Jim Nelson, University of Colorado, Boulder .......................................................... 385

An Empirical Investigation of Differences Between North American and European MIS Research
J. Roberto Evaristo, University of Denver, and Elena Karahanna-Evaristo, University of Cyprus .... 387

PANELS

Panel 1: Valuing Diversity: The Challenge Facing IT Managers and Educators
Panel Chair: Lynda M. Applegate, Harvard Business School
Panelists: Joe Cleveland, Business Information Technology
Mary Gentile, Harvard Business School ............................................................... 389
Panel 2:  What Can Information Systems Learn from Economics? Applications and Highlights from Current Research
Panel Chair:  Erik Brynjolfsson, Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Panelists:  Paul Atewell, Graduate School of City of New York
Haim Mendelson, Stanford University
Abraham Seidmann, University of Rochester ........................................ 391

Panel 3:  Architectures for Enterprise in Integration: Are There Lessons to be Learned from Europe?
Panel Chair:  A.-W. Scheer, University of Saarland
Panelists:  T. Goranson, SAIC
K. Kosanke, ESPRIT
H. Krcmar, University of Stuttgart-Hohenheim ........................................ 393

Panel 4:  Event-Driven Business Solutions: Implementation Experiences and Issues
Panel Chair:  J. Owen Cherrington, Brigham Young University
Panelists:  William E. McCarthy, Michigan State University
David P. Andros, Consultant
Richard Roth, Price Waterhouse
Eric L. Denna, Brigham Young University

Panel 5:  Information Systems in Japan: Education, Research, and Practice
Panel Chair:  Richard Watson, University of Georgia
Panel Co-Chair: Jiro Kokuryo, Keio University
Panelists:  Practice:  Kazuya Matsudaria, Pride Inc.
Shigeo Mori, Ajinomoto System Techno Corporation
Education:  Ryutaro Manabe, Bunkyo University
Haruo Takagi, Keio University
Research:  Osam Sato, Tokyo Keizai University
Tetsuya Uchiki, Toyo University
Monta Nakajima, Bunyko University ...................................................... 396

Panel 6:  EDI, Industry Structure and Competition in European Markets
Panel Chair: Niels Bjørn-Andersen, Copenhagen Business School
Panelists:  Ramon O'Callaghan, IESE
Joachim Griese, Bern University
Tawfik Jelassi, INSEAD
Pieter Ribbers, Tilburg University .......................................................... 398

Panel 7:  A Workshop on Two Techniques for Qualitative Analysis: Interviewing and Evaluation
Panel Chair: Lynda Davies, Griffith University
Panelists:  Michael Newman, Manchester University/Erasmus University
Bonnie Kaplan, Quinnipiac College .......................................................... 399

Panel 8:  The Right Research Task: A Critical Look at the Tradeoffs of Experimental Task Diversity in IS Research
Panel Chair: Bradley C. Wheeler, University of Maryland at College Park
Panelists:  Izak Benbasat, University of British Columbia
Nancy P. Melone, Carnegie Mellon University
K. S. Raman, National University of Singapore ....................................... 400
Panel 9: The Challenge of IS Education in Business Schools: Coping with Ever-Changing Demands of Students' Diversity, Business Expectations and Accreditation
Panel Chair: Beverly K. Kahn, Suffolk University
Panelists: Jack Baroudi, New York University
Scott McIntyre, University of Colorado at Colorado Springs
Nava Pliskin, Ben Gurion University

Panel 10: Privacy and Accuracy Issues for Information Systems in the 1990s and Beyond
Panel Chair: Michael Bieber, New Jersey Institute of Technology
Panelists: Roger Clarke, Australian National University
Nanette Ditosto, U.S. Council on International Business
Rob Kling, University of California at Irvine
Peggy O'Rourke, U.S. Internal Revenue Service

Panel 11: Information Technology and Ethics: What are the Issues?
Panel Chair: Sue Conger, Baruch College, City University of New York
Panelists: Karen D. Loch, Georgia State University
Effy Oz, Wayne State University
William H. Starbuck, New York University

Panel 12: Systems Development: Vital MIS Research Method or Medicine Show?
Panel Chair: Dirk Baldwin, Virginia Tech
Panelists: Joey F. George, Florida State University
Ramayya Krishnan, Carnegie Mellon University
Jay F. Nunamaker, Jr., University of Arizona
Joel Stroup, American Management Systems, Inc.

Panel 13: International Perspectives on Information Technology Outsourcing
Panel Chair: N. Venkatraman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Panelists: Sid Huff, University of Western Ontario
Lawrence Loh, Massachusetts Institute of Technology/
National University of Singapore
Josep Valor, IESE

Panel 14: Research for Practice: Experience with the Research Program of SIM's Advanced Practices Council
Panel Chair: Madeline Weiss, Weiss Associates, Inc.
Panelists: Cynthia M. Beath, Southern Methodist University
M. Lynne Markus, Claremont Graduate School
Robert M. Rubin, Elf Autochem North American, Inc.

Panel Chair: Hyung-Min Michael Chung, Texas A&M University
Panelists: Paul E. Johnson, University of Minnesota
Kenneth Ford, University of West Florida

Panel 16: A Tale of Two Cities: The Role of Information Technology in Supporting Diversity in the Atlanta Project and the Re-Build LA Project
Panel Chair: Kuldeep Kumar, Georgia State University
Panelists: Ed Davis, Clark-Atlanta University
Benn R. Konsynski, Emory University
Ojelanki Ngwenyama, University of Michigan
Henry Whitlow, Planning Solutions
Panel 17: Internet and Beyond: Building Public Data Infrastructures
Panel Chair: Ajit Kambil, New York University
Panelists: Brian Kahin, Harvard University
Brewster Kahle, WAIS, Inc.

Panel 18: The Infusion of Information Technologies into Traditional Societies: Lessons for IS Research
Panel Chair: Michael D. Myers, University of Auckland
Panelists: Conrad Shayo, Claremont Graduate School
Barbara Gutek, University of Arizona
Heinz Klein, State University of New York at Binghamton

TUTORIALS

How Structuration Theory Can Inform the Social Study of Information Technology
Wanda J. Orlikowski, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

An Introduction to the Object Paradigm and Object-Oriented Systems
David E. Monarchi, University of Colorado, Boulder

The State of the Art in Group Support Systems Research
Alan Dennis, University of Georgia, Joe Valacich, Indiana University, and Bob Anson, Boise State University

Total Quality and the IS Function
Steven Alter, University of San Francisco

Cognitive Mapping: How Information Systems can Help with Messy Problems and Qualitative Data
Fran Ackermann, University of Strathclyde

Meet the Editors
Richard J. Boland, Case Western Reserve University, Gerardine DeSanctis, University of Minnesota, John C. Henderson, Boston University, Blake Ives, Southern Methodist University, and John L. King, University of California, Irvine

Creativity, Disney Style
WALT DISNEY WORLD Resort Seminar Production
