Proceedings of the second International Whey Conference, held in Chicago, USA, 27–29 October 1997

CONTENTS

Foreword 6
Welcome & Conference Overview – W.S. Clark, Jr (USA) 7

SESSION II
I.1 The Whey Processing Industry - Into the 21st Century –
B. Horton (USA) 12
I.2 Whey Products in Europe; Whey Promotion Programme in Germany -
An Overview of the Market and the Success of Whey Products in Europe – G. Herbetz (Germany) 26
I.3 Whey Product Marketing in North America –
D.C. Storhoff (USA) 28
I.4 Some Thoughts on Whey Products Marketing – J.F. Hepburn (USA) 30
I.5 The European Whey Products Association (A luncheon address) –
P.F. O'Shea (Belgium) 34

SESSION II
II.1 Whey Processing and Separation Technology : State-of-the-art and New Developments – J.M.K. Timmer & H.C. van der Horst
(the Netherlands) 40
II.2 Protein Separation by Ion Exchange in Columns –
M.R. Etzel, S. Dermawan, M.N. Budiman, V.V. Hendriadi
& I. Rosalina (USA) 66
II.3 Improved Method for Monitoring the Retention of Proteins during Ultrafiltration – T.J. Lock & P.J Storey (New Zealand) 73
II.4 Developments in Whey Separation and Clarification –
W. Wieking (Germany) 79
II.5 Nanofiltration and Ion Exchange for the Demineralization of Whey –
T. Hutson (USA) 88
SESSION III

III.1 Comparison of Analytical Methods to Quantify Whey Proteins – C.S. Norris, M. Tsao, N.W. Haggarty & D.E. Otter (New Zealand) 123

III.2 Functional Properties of 34% Whey Protein Concentrates – W.J. Harper & Kwok Man Lee (USA) 140

III.3 New Physical Properties of Whey Proteins – K. Sato (Japan) 154

III.4 Gelation of Whey Proteins - Factors Determining Gel Strength – E.A. Foegeding (USA) 164

III.5 The Effect of Pretreatment on Increasing Gel Strength of Whey Protein Concentrates – M.J. Choi, C.S. Hwang & M.E. Mangino (USA) 172

III.7 Heat Treatments to Improve Functional Properties of Whey Proteins – M. Britten (Canada) 189

III.8 The Importance of Whey Protein Fractions for WPC and WPI Functionality – L.M. Huffman (USA) 197

III.9 Influence of Whey Proteins on the Rheological and Sensory Characteristics of Chocolate – L. Hashim & H. Chaveron (France) 206

III.10 Anecdotes of Developing International Food Standards – G.M. Burditt (USA) 214

SESSION IV

IV.1 Permeate, Milk Sugar and Derivatives - An Overview – R. de Boer & J. Dijksterhuis (USA) 220

IV.2 Use of Whey Permeates for Protein Standardization in Milk – P. Jelen (Canada) 227

IV.3 Lactose Derivatives : Functions and Applications – E. Timmermans (the Netherlands) 233
IV.4 Large-Scale Production of Lactobionic Acid - Use and New Applications – K.-G. Gerling (Germany) 251

IV.5 Lactulose : Status of Health-Related Applications – W. Strohmaier (Germany) 262

IV.6 Production of Bacteriocin from Whey Permeate by Fermentation with Lactic Acid Bacteria– C. Lacroix (Canada) 272

SESSION V

V.1 Antioxidant Activities of Whey Components – E.A. Decker, H. Tak, C. Verdecchia & M.Horgan (USA) 285

V.2 Immuno-enhancing Properties of Undenatured Milk Serum Protein Isolate in HIV Patients – G. Bounous (Canada) 293

V.4 Anti-Tumor Effects of Dietary Whey Protein and its Value for Head and Neck Cancer Patients – J.F. Chmiel (USA) 310

V.5 Anti-Cancer Properties of Proteins in the Milk Fat Globule Membranes in Whey – R.C. Gorewit & V.L. Spitsberg (USA) 315

SESSION VI

VI.1 The Role of Lactoferrin and Lactoperoxidase in Reducing the Activity of Free Radicals – J.-P. Perraudin & B. Reiter (UK) 326

VI.2 Prospective Clinical Applications for a Growth Factor Extract from Whey : Gut Disease and Wound Repair – G.O. Regester, D.A. Belford, C. Goddard, G.S. Howarth, G.W. Smithers, A.C. Copeland, K.S. De Silva, L.Z. Toneman & L.C. Read (Australia) 333

VI.3 Cosmetic Properties of Whey Minerals and their Application to Skin Care Products for Babies – H. Negishi, H. Otomo, T. Gotou, T. Ueda & T. Kuwata (Japan) 337

VI.4 Whey Processing Technology to Support Management of Metabolic Diseases – K.K.Gauri (Germany / India) 351
