Le Corbusier
Béton Brut and Ineffable Space, 1940-1965
Surface Materials and Psychophysiology of Vision

Roberto Gargiani
Anna Rosellini

Translated from the Italian by Stephen Piccolo

EPFL Press
A Swiss academic publisher distributed by Routledge
Table of Contents

Chapter 1. The discovery of béton brut with malfaçons: the worksite of the Unité d'Habitation at Marseille

3 Artificial ground and vision of the landscape
18 Patterns of formwork and aggregate size of concrete mixture
36 The sculptures moulées of the Modulor
45 Vibrated concrete cladding panels
48 Matroil polychromy on concrete
54 The invention of the béton brut aesthetic

Chapter 2. Acrobat training: the provocateur of new forms

63 Synthesis of plastics arts and ineffable space
67 Plastics acoustics: sculptures with Savina
89 Sand-casting with Nivola and glass sculptures for Murano
94 Mural painting, muralnomad, enameled metal panels
105 Landscapes in the heart of Saint-Dié and New York
108 Color-code polychromy in the Claude et Duval factory
114 Polychromy in the restoration of the pan de verre of the Cité de Refuge
116 New World of Space and photography, analysis of the artistic form
121 The project for a laboratory of the synthesis of the major arts
126 The Chapel at Ronchamp: shaping space by embossing
132 Construction of the surfaces gauches
144 Photographing ineffable space

Chapter 3. Unités d’Habitation at Rezé-lès-Nantes, Berlin and Briey-en-Forêt

149 The Unité d'Habitation at Rezé-lès-Nantes, or molecular unit
156 The Beru walls, or concrete shuttering
158 Design of the formwork and sculptures moulées
170 Claustra and cladding panels
175 Quatrième mur
179 Restoration of wall sectors with cladding panels
180 Unité d'Habitation at Berlin: the brise-soleil aesthetic
183 Smooth cladding panels: beauty by contrast in crisis
184 Formwork in fiber sheets and sculptures moulées with inscriptions
191 Unité d'Habitation at Briey-en-Forêt: technical evolutions of the formwork for the béton brut
Chapter 4. Chandigarh, or the cosmic vision

197 The City and the Capitol
209 Screens for vision and optical illusions: artificial hills, rows of trees, reflecting pools
217 The Climate Grid, principles of a biological order
226 Bio-aesthetic and Arborisation Grid
230 The High Court, monument of refrigerating voids
239 Béton brut with formwork of wood and metal, and the cement gun
248 Brut stones and Latex polychromy
256 Tapestries: murals for acoustics
260 The Secretariat, administrative machine
266 Texture, metaphor of functionaries and ministers
270 Defects in the metal formwork
277 The Parliament, the hymn of mankind
289 From the acoustic texture of béton brut to celestial atmospheres
297 The forest of columns
299 Deformations of the metal formwork
304 The Parliament door and the Open Hand
313 The silhouette of the Governor’s Palace
318 The signs of the Capitol
340 The City Centre

Chapter 5. Brutal skin in pisé, brick and wood

345 Pisé, concrete with rubble, exposed brick
354 Project for the village of humble houses in Chandigarh
361 The Sarabhai house at Ahmedabad: reinforced concrete beams for free walls
368 The Jacol houses at Neuilly-sur-Seine: reinforced concrete beams for free windows
373 Controlled constructive automatisms: bricks with crude joints and béton brut
379 Musées à Croissance Illimité at Ahmedabad and Chandigarh
389 Corollary of the sculptures moulées
390 The wooden Cabanon

Chapter 6. Machines à habiter for tropical visions and climates

397 Villa Curutchet, or the landscapes’ spectacle
401 Villa Shodhan: erosion of the Purist volume at Garches
407 Formwork with horizontal layers
412 The Millowners’ Association building: perspective grids for vision and textile metaphors
417 Indian perfection of béton brut
422 Visual atmosphere and dignity of the stones of floors and walls

Chapter 7. Automatisms and projections of sounds and images

429 Miracles box for spontaneous theater
432 Kinetic illusionism, in the manner of Vasarely
440 Automatic drawings: in the wake of Breton
446 Transfer of works and photographic enlargements
456 The second Salubra wallpaper collection: Op and Pop patterns
459 “Jeux électroniques” on the roof of the Unité d’Habitation at Marseille
464 The Philips Pavilion, or the space of Concrete Music and artistic projections
469 Construction of the ruled surfaces
475 The Poème électronique: art in the electronic age
479 Electronic Laboratory of Scientific Decision and Round-Books
483 Project for the Electronic Calculation Center Olivetti at Rho
487 Restoration and transformation of Villa Savoye

Chapter 8. Toward a new stereotomy

491 From texturique to opus moderne, to opus optimum: the truth of materials
495 The Monastery of La Tourette, forms of transfer
503 Pan de verre ondulatoire
509 Construction of the box for religious functions
516 Walls in shuttered concrete with cement gun cladding
521 The design of the floors
523 The Brazilian Pavilion in Paris: souvenirs of landscapes and research on smooth concrete
527 The Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts in Cambridge, Massachusetts: the hands and the head
532 Béton brut without artistic veins
544 Smooth béton brut: the National Museum of Western Art of Tokyo
547 The hall and the photographic fresco
550 Stereotomy and hardness of béton brut
553 Opus Modulor of the béton brut: the Unité d’Habitation at Firminy
560 Transfer of sections: the Church of Saint-Pierre and the Maison des Jeunes et de la Culture
563 Neat béton brut with sculpture in positive and negative
570 Profiles of space
575 Build without building: the Hospital of Venice

580 Name Index
586 Figure Credits