CONTENTS

List of figures xi
List of tables xiv
List of contributors xvi
Introduction: the craft of ‘doing research’ in spatial and regional planning xxiv
Elisabete A. Silva, Patsy Healey, Neil Harris, and Pieter Van den Broeck

PART I
Personal reflections on research careers 1

1.1 Introduction 3
Patsy Healey, School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape,
Newcastle University, UK

1.2 Learning the craft of research: a continuing process 5
Patsy Healey, School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape,
Newcastle University, UK

1.3 Shifting between academia and practice: reflections on doing planning research in a university environment 12
Neil Harris, Cardiff School of Planning and Geography,
Cardiff University, UK

1.4 Research methodology and my life: some personal reflections 18
Mee Kam Ng, Department of Geography and Resource Management,
Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong
1.5 It takes more than just looking to make a difference: the challenge for planning research
Heather Campbell, Department of Town and Regional Planning, Sheffield University, UK

1.6 The life-changing transitions of an academic research career
Elisabete A. Silva, Department of Land Economy, University of Cambridge, UK

1.7 Learning the craft of academic writing
John Forester, Department of City and Regional Planning, Cornell University, USA

PART 2

The craft of research

2.1 Introduction
Patsy Healey, School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape, Newcastle University, UK

2.2 Research design
Jacques du Toit, Department of Town and Regional Planning, University of Pretoria, South Africa

2.3 Planning research ethics
Huw Thomas, School of Geography and Planning, Cardiff University, UK, and Francesco Lo Piccolo, University of Palermo, Italy

2.4 What can we learn from France? Some reflections on the methodologies of cross-national research
Philip Booth, Department of Town and Regional Planning, Sheffield University, UK

2.5 Towards social holism: social innovation, holistic research methodology and pragmatic collective action in spatial planning
Frank Moulaert, Department of Architecture, Urbanism and Spatial Planning, University of Leuven, Belgium, and Abid Mehnoor, Sustainable Places Research Institute, Cardiff University, UK

2.6 Refutation and the knowledge base of urban planning
Chris Webster, Faculty of Architecture, University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

2.7 Inquiry and design for spatial planning: three approaches to planning research in late modern cities
Pier Carlo Palermo and Davide Ponziui, Department of Architecture and Planning, Politecnico di Milano, Italy
PART 3
Working within a qualitative tradition 133

3.1 Rediscovering qualitative research
Pieter Van den Broeck, Department of Architecture,
Urbanism and Spatial Planning, University of Leuven, Belgium

3.2 Analysing qualitative data
Robert Mark Silverman, Department of Urban and Regional Planning, University at Buffalo, USA

3.3 Researching community engagement in post-1997 Hong Kong:
collaborative or manipulative practice?
Mee Kam Ng, Department of Geography and Resources Management,
Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

3.4 Planning for the place: ethnographic research and planning practice
Sandra Lee Pinel, University of Idaho, USA

3.5 Researching professional perspectives in practice:
a pedagogic-ethnographic approach
Maria Håkansson, Urban and Regional Studies,
Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm, Sweden

3.6 Analysing cartographic representations in spatial planning
Stefanie Dihr, Nijmegen School of Management,
Radboud University Nijmegen, Netherlands

3.7 Urban morphology and cultural expressions: qualitative methods to understand the city’s dynamic in a self-built area in Caracas, Venezuela
Gabriela Quintana Vigiola, School of Built Environment, Faculty of Design,
Architecture and Building, University of Technology, Sydney, Australia

3.8 A value-oriented approach to discursive analysis of urban and regional planning
W.W. Buunk and L.M.C. van der Weide,
Windesheim University of Applied Sciences, Netherlands

3.9 Imagination as a method for generating knowledge about possible urban futures
Diane Davis, Harvard University Graduate School of Design, USA, and Tali Hatuka, Department of Geography and Urban Environment,
Tel Aviv University, Israel
3.10 From wicked problems to elusive planning: exploring Dubai's development conundrum

Mahyar Arefi, School of Planning, University of Cincinnati, USA

PART 4

Working within a quantitative tradition

4.1 Quantitative methods' expertise – a diverse landscape in Europe and around the world

Elisabet A. Silva, Department of Land Economy, University of Cambridge, UK

4.2 Thinking spatially, thinking statistically

Robert Haining, Department of Geography, University of Cambridge, UK

4.3 Indicators and spatial planning: methods and applications

Cecilia Wong, Centre for Urban Policy Studies, School of Environment, Education and Development, University of Manchester, UK

4.4 Measuring space: a review of spatial metrics for urban growth and shrinkage

José P. Reis, Elisabet A. Silva, Department of Land Economy, University of Cambridge, UK, and Paulo Piulho, Research Centre for Territory, Transports and Environment, School of Engineering, University of Porto, Portugal

4.5 Regression analysis in planning research

Helen Bao, Department of Land Economy, University of Cambridge, UK

4.6 Spatial econometrics in practice

Pedro Pires de Matos, Department of Forestry and Environmental Resources, University of North Carolina, USA

4.7 Planning support systems (PSS) as research instruments

Stan Geertman, Department of Human Geography and Spatial Planning, Utrecht University, Netherlands

4.8 Geoprocessing and spatial planning: some concepts and applications

Jorge Xavier da Silva, Department and Lab of Jorge Xavier da Silva, Geoprocessing Laboratory/Institute of Geosciences, Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Tiago Badre Marino, Department of Geosciences, Federal Rural University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; and Maria Hilde de Barros Goes, Institute of Agronomy/Department of Geosciences, Federal Rural University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil
Contents

4.9 Spatial simulation and the real world: digital methods and techniques in the context of strategic planning
Claudia Yamu and Andreas Voigt, Faculty of Planning and Architecture, Vienna University of Technology, Austria; and Pierre Frankhauser, Université de Franche-Comté, France

4.10 Spatial data infrastructures for spatial planning research
Max Craglia, Joint Research Centre of the European Commission, European Commission, Europe

4.11 Urban sprawl and region building
Gu Chaolin, School of Architecture and Department of Urban Planning, Tsinghua University, China

PART 5
Methodology in action

5.1 Methodology in action: the relationship between research and practice
Neil Harris, Cardiff School of Planning and Geography, Cardiff University, UK

5.2 Research impact: should the sky be the limit?
Simin Davoudi, School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape, Newcastle University, UK

5.3 Enabling transdisciplinary research on social cohesion in the city: the Social Polis experience
Davide Cassinari and Frank Moulart, Department of Architecture, Urbanism and Spatial Planning, University of Leuven, Belgium

5.4 Researching for policy relevance: critical reflections on government-sponsored research
Deborah Peel and Greg Lloyd, Built Environment Research Institute, University of Ulster, UK

5.5 Using the case study approach to inform planning practice and research in Africa
James Duminy, African Centre for Cities, University of Cape Town, South Africa

5.6 Urban master planning in China: a case study of policy and practice in Hua County
Guanzeng Zhang, Baoyu Wang and Xinyan Jiang, Tongji University, China
5.7 Conceptual and epistemic uncertainty in planning: research for the renewal of industrial areas in Sweden

Anders Törnqvist, Blekinge Institute of Technology, Sweden

5.8 Cost-benefit analysis in participatory planning: a critical perspective

Tore Sager, Department of Civil and Transport Engineering, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU), Norway

5.9 The strategic use of the charrette process for applied research

Zeenat Kotval-K and John R. Mullin, Department of Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning, University of Massachusetts—Amherst, USA

5.10 Engaging and educating young people in sustainable development: communicating research findings and planning practice in an active learning environment

Angela Million, Institute for Urban and Regional Planning, Berlin University of Technology, Germany, and Patricia Machemer and Zenia Kotval, School of Planning Design and Construction, Michigan State University, USA

Index