Sanitation in Urban Britain, 1560–1700

Leona J. Skelton
Contents

List of figures xi
Acknowledgements xiii
Conventions xv
English and Scots glossary xvii

Introduction 1

The ‘chamber pot in the window’: myth or reality? 1
Contemporary literature 5
Historiographical progress in the field 9
The project 12
Notes 15

1 The character of the environmental challenge 20

Introduction 20
Domestic waste, drainage systems and the built infrastructure 21
Privies, chamber pots and Sir John Harrington’s water closet 27
Malodorous trades 33
Natural or divine causes? Plague and the meaning of smell 36
Urban agriculture and the urban-rural manure trade 41
Conclusion 46
Notes 48

2 York’s and Edinburgh’s sanitation in national, demographic, legal and governmental context 54

Introduction 54
Part 1: York’s sanitation in context 56
Part 2: Edinburgh’s sanitation in context 66
Conclusion 74
Notes 75
3 Civic-funded sanitation services: waste disposal, street cleaning and drainage

Introduction 79
English towns and Scottish burghs 80
York 90
Edinburgh 111
Conclusion 130
Notes 132

4 Regulating insanitary nuisances

Introduction 138
English towns 140
York 143
Edinburgh 149
Conclusion 162
Notes 163

Conclusion 166
Notes 178

Works cited 179
Index 194