CONTENTS

List of figures viii
Acknowledgements xi
Contributors xii

1 Architecture and the school in the twentieth century 1
   Julie Willis

PART I
Lessons from history 9

2 From looking to seeing, or this was the future . . . 11
   Ian Grosvenor

3 Building ruins: abandoned ideas of the school 19
   Martin Lawn

4 Postwar schools: a personal history 25
   Elain Harwood

PART II
School buildings 37

5 The classroom is another place? Ernest J. Kump’s ‘ideal’ learning environments for Californian schools 1937–1962 39
   Philip Goad
6 Educational facilities laboratories: debating and designing the postwar American schoolhouse
Amy F. Ogata

7 Creating friendly school environments: ‘casual’ high schools, progressive education and child-centred culture in postwar America
Dale Allen Gyure

8 Open shut them: open classrooms in Australian schools, 1967–1983
Cameron Logan

9 The balance between intimacy and interchange: Swiss school buildings in the 1960s
Marco Di Nallo

PART III
School cultures

10 Making schools and thinking through materialities: Denmark, 1890–1960
Ning de Coninck-Smith

11 Domestic spaces and school places: vocational education and gender in modern Australia
Kate Darian-Smith

12 ‘We make no discrimination’: Aboriginal education and the socio-spatial arrangements of the Australian classroom
Julie McLeod and Sianan Healy

13 A model school for a model city: Shaw Junior High School as a monument to planning reform
Amber Wiley

14 The Nigerian ‘Unity Schools’ project: a UNESCO-IDA school building program in Africa
Ola Uduku

PART IV
School spaces

15 Quiet stories of educational design
Catherine Burke
16 Hans Coper and Paul Ritter: tactile environments for children in postwar Britain and Australia
Geraint Franklin and David Nichols

205

17 Bristling with opportunity: audiovisual technology in Australian schools from the 1930s to the 1980s
David Nichols and Hannah Lewi

219

18 Digital classrooms and the new economies of attention: reflections on the end of schooling as confinement
Inés Dussel

230

Index

245