THE ANTHROPOLOGY OF ICELAND

Edited by
E. Paul Durrenberger and Gísli Pálsson

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA PRESS IOWA CITY
Contents

Preface vii
Introduction: Toward an Anthropology of Iceland ix
   Gísli Pálsson and E. Paul Durrenberger

I. IDEOLOGY AND ACTION

   Forms of Production and Fishing Expertise 3
      E. Paul Durrenberger and Gísli Pálsson
   The Idea of Mystical Power in Modern Iceland 19
      Darryl Wieland
   The Hunter and the Animal 39
      Haraldur Ólafsson

II. KINSHIP AND GENDER

   Problems and Prospects in the Study of Icelandic Kinship 53
      George W. Rich
   Outside, Muted, and Different: Icelandic Women’s Movements and Their Notions of Authority and Cultural Separateness 80
      Sígríður Dúna Kristmundsdóttir
   Public View and Private Voices 98
      Inga Dóra Björnsdóttir

III. CULTURE, CLASS, AND ETHNICITY

   Language and Society: The Ethnolinguistics of Icelanders 121
      Gísli Pálsson
   Work and the Identity of the Poor: Work Load, Work Discipline, and Self-Respect 140
      Finnur Magnússon
Adaptation to an Ethnic Structure: The Urban Icelandic-Canadians of Winnipeg 157
John S. Matthiasson

IV. THE COMMONWEALTH PERIOD

Regional Archaeological Research in Iceland: Potentials and Possibilities 179
Kevin P. Smith and Jeffrey R. Parsons

Contributions to the Zooarchaeology of Iceland: Some Preliminary Notes 203
Thomas Amorosi

Anthropological Perspectives on the Commonwealth Period 228
E. Paul Durrenberger

Notes on Contributors 247
Index 251