‘Ecclesia Nidrosiensis’ and ‘Noregs veldi’

The role of the Church in the making of Norwegian domination in the Norse World

‘Norgesveldet’, Occasional Papers No. 3
Trondheim 2012
Contents

Part 1: ‘Metropolis civitas Nortmannorum est Trondemnis...In qua iacet corpus beatissimi Olaph regis et martyr’

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter 1: The Nidaros Church and its province</th>
<th>15</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Steinar Imsen</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Province</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Church</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanctus Olavus Rex Perpetuum Norwegiae</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Church reform, the case of Iceland</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The border-diocese of Orkney</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Close to the pagans</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Nordic ecclesiastical context</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conclusion</td>
<td>38</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bibliography</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chapter 2: The cult of St. Olav in the Norse cultural sphere – and outside it

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>St. Olav</th>
<th>46</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The cult of St. Olav</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The first phase 1031–c.1380</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The second phase c.1380–1537</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The literary and legendary material</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The second strand: The surge of the cult outside Scandinavia</td>
<td>56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conclusion</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bibliography</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chapter 3: The metropolitan, the king and the bishops in ‘Norgesveldet’

| Introduction: Patterns of conflicts 1260–1450 | 67 |
Section I: 1260–1320. Conflicts and legislation in the Norwegian Commonwealth
The Tønsberg Concordat ........................................................................................................... 71
The concordat and the jurisdiction in the insular churches ......................................................... 72
The election of bishops .................................................................................................................... 73
Earldom and bishopric in Orkney ................................................................................................. 74
The Faeroes – a conjecture ............................................................................................................. 75
Gardar ............................................................................................................................................ 76
Metropolitan authority at the turn of the century and the legal framework ................................. 76
Section II: 1320–80. Metropolitan authority at risk ................................................................. 79
Papal provisions and authorisations ............................................................................................. 80
Section III: 1380–1430. The Union of Kalmar and the church policy of Queen Margrete and King Erik the Pomeranian ........................................................................... 83
The Faeroes ................................................................................................................................... 84
Orkney: the death of a bishop ........................................................................................................ 85
Gardar on Greenland – towards extinction? ................................................................................. 87
Papal provisions to Skálholt .......................................................................................................... 89
Bishop Peter of Hólar .................................................................................................................... 91
Erik the Pomeranian and the Orkney church ................................................................................. 93
The church policy of Queen Margrete’s house ............................................................................. 95
Section IV: 1430–58. Aslak Bolt’s archiepiscopacy and the Council of Basle
Jens Gereksson and the English bishops on Iceland ...................................................................... 96
The Council, the Pope and the King ............................................................................................. 100
The renewal of the Tautra Concord ............................................................................................. 102
Papal provisions ............................................................................................................................ 103
Epilogue and conclusion .............................................................................................................. 106
Bibliography ................................................................................................................................. 108

Part 2: Nidaros and its British dioceses
Chapter 4: Sodor, Nidaros, the Isles and ‘Norgesveldet’ – Diocese, province, kingdom and dominion in the making in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries ................................................................................................................................. 115
Ian Beuermann
The inclusion of the diocese of Sodor into the province of Nidaros ........................................ 116
The Norwegian side ...................................................................................................................... 118
The Island side .............................................................................................................................. 121
The contacts between the diocese of Sodor and the Archbishop of Nidaros ........................... 128
Part 3: Iceland and Nidaros

Chapter 8: Election and rejection – the Norwegian ‘seizure’ of the Icelandic bishoprics in 1237–39

Heidi Anett Øvergård Beistad

The Icelandic context: the question of the goðakirkju

The Nidaros context: the question of ecclesiastical integration and intervention

The Norwegian context: the question of regnum and sacerdotium

The universal context: the question of uniformity within Western Christianity

Election and rejection–concluding remarks

Chapter 9: The Laws on Tithe in the Manuscripts Konungsbók and Staðarhólsbók of Grágás

Patricia Pires Boulhosa

Chapter 10: The organisation of Hólar bishopric according to Auðunarmáldagar

Jón Víðar Sigurðsson

Churches, half-churches and chapels

Population, parishes and hreppr

Conclusion

Chapter 11: Succumbing secular chiefs. On secular chiefs in Iceland, their loss of ground to the Church, c.1270 to 1355 and its impact

Helgi Porláksson

Introduction

How great a loss?

Were major farmers’ churches any substitutes for the staðir?

Clashes between the secular leaders and the bishops in Skagafjörður
Chapter 12: Use of canonistic texts in medieval Iceland – the case of AM 671 4° fol. 40r-63v
Kristoffer Vadum
Introduction ................................................................................................................. 283
Canonistic tools.......................................................................................................... 287
The extracts from Speculum historiale ...................................................................... 290
Speculum historiale VIII 68-89 – canon law for dummies ...................................... 290
Speculum historiale I 42–54 – the need for professional skills ................................. 293
Conclusion .................................................................................................................. 294
Bibliography .............................................................................................................. 295

Part 4: Nidaros’ expansion northwards, its terra missionis and its neighbours in Scandinavia and the Baltic

Chapter 13: Juxta paganos: The delineation of the religious frontier in the North
Lars Ivar Hansen
Introduction .................................................................................................................. 301
The foundation: Establishment of fishing villages – and churches ......................... 304
The expansion of the Norwegian church .................................................................... 311
The expansion of the Orthodox monasteries in the east ........................................... 317
The multi-room houses .............................................................................................. 319
Conclusion .................................................................................................................. 325
Bibliography .............................................................................................................. 328

Chapter 14: The Cistercians, Linköping, Uppsala and the making of a conglomerate Sweden
Thomas Lindkvist
The Cistercians and the emerging Kingdom of Sweden ............................................. 333
Uppsala becomes metropolis of Sweden .................................................................... 337
The Church and the expansion of the Swedish realm ................................................. 338
The first phase ............................................................................................................ 339
The second phase ....................................................................................................... 340