CONTENTS

Acknowledgments viii
A Note on Translations ix

Introduction
1
More about less
The poverty of modernism
The organization of this book

1. The Naked City: Realities of Design and Space Laid Bare
15
Nurturing the “real life” of the city
Beyond the rational city
From “plenty” to “excess”
Carving out the spaces of culture and politics
Urbanism and power
Defending urban mix

2. Formulary for a New Urbanism: Rethinking the City
69
From the rational to the sublime
Making sense of psychogeography
A passion for maps
Drifting as a revolution of everyday life
Language, time, and the city

3. A New Babylon: The City Redesigned
105
Constructing situations
A “détourned” city
A technological baroque
Unitary urbanism
Constant’s New Babylon
The structure of New Babylon
New Babylon’s utopian fun
Disorientation
A cybernetic architecture
The debate over technocracy

Conclusions
Notes
Bibliography
Illustration Credits
Index