New Media: a critical introduction
Second Edition

Martin Lister / Jon Dovey / Seth Giddings / Iain Grant / Kieran Kelly
Contents

List of illustrations vii
List of case studies x
Authors' biographies xi
Preface to the second edition xiii

Introduction 1
The book's purpose 1
Our approach to the subject 1
The book's historical dimension 4
The book's emphasis on wider questions of culture and technology 4
The book's organisation 4
How to use the book 5
The book's parts 5

1 New Media and New Technologies 9
1.1 New media: do we know what they are? 9
1.2 The characteristics of new media: some defining concepts 13
1.3 Change and continuity 44
1.4 What kind of history? 51
1.5 Who was dissatisfied with old media? 66
1.6 New media: determining or determined? 77
Bibliography 99

2 New Media and Visual Culture 105
2.1 What happened to Virtual Reality (VR)? 105
2.2 The virtual and visual culture 109
2.3 The digital virtual 112
2.4 Immersion: a history 114
2.5 Perspective, camera, software 124
2.6 Virtual images/images of the virtual 124
2.7 Digital cinema 132
Bibliography 158

3 Networks, Users and Economics 163
3.1 Introduction 163
3.2 What is the Internet? 164
3.3 Historicising net studies 165
3.4 Economics and networked media culture 169
3.5 Political economy 173
3.6 The social form of new media 175
3.7 Limits on commercial influence 178
3.8 Globalisation, neo-liberalism and the Internet 179
3.9 The digital divide 181
3.10 Boom and bust in the information economy 187
Illustrations

2.26 MAX 141
2.27 The Mask, 1994 145
2.28 The Praxinoscope: pre-cinematic apparatus 146
2.29 Ladislav Starewicz, 'The Cameraman's Revenge', 1911 148
2.30 Antz, 1998 148
2.31 Cyberworld 3D 150
2.32 Phantasmagoria 164
2.33 Resident Evil 154
2.34 Final Fantasy: The Spirits Within, 2001 155
2.35 Monsters Inc. 2001 155
2.36 Waking Life, 2001 157
2.37 Sin City, 2005 157

3.1 The history of the web browser in an earlier version of Internet Explorer 178
3.2 Internet users by continent, 2006 183
3.3 Internet users per 100 inhabitants 183
3.4 Earlier forms of media distribution: the vinyl disc and the compact cassette 193
3.5 Napster seeks a legal way to make money offering licensed music 196
3.6 The shift from Web 1.0 to Web 2.0 204

4.1 Handheld virtual worlds 237
4.2 The Sims: everyday life as cyberspace 238
4.3 Telewest brochure 240
4.4 Argos computer cabinet 244
4.5 One child, one PC, and the domestic ergonomics of new media 245
4.6 Hello Kitty mobile phone charm 252
4.7 XBox 255
4.8 Crystal Rainforest 2000 259
4.9 Pokémon toys 263
4.10 Powering up 264
4.11 The Gillespies' living room 265
4.12 Identity play in The Sims 273
4.13 (a-b) Monstrous feminine bodies 276
4.14 'Leonardo Two', Charles Csuri, 1966 278
4.15 Virtual car drivers and the Nintendo Wii 284
4.16 Pikachu, I choose you! 292
4.17 Game code: Evil Alien 301

5.1 (a-b) Terminator hand from T2 (1992), Jaquet-Droz, Androïde hand (1769) 322
5.2 Hero of Alexandria's Automata: the mobile theatre, first century AD 346
5.3 The first moving images: an eighteenth-century mechanical picture 347
5.4 Lungs and bellows 347
5.5 Vaucanson's mechanical duck (1738) 351
5.6 (a-f) Writer, draughtsman and musician 352
5.7 I am not thinking . . . do I not therefore exist? 354
Illustrations

5.8 Atomic Robot Man 355
5.9 A steam cyborg? Steampunk issue 1 358
5.10 Sunflower clock: "art and nature conjoined" 360
5.11 The 'Pascaline' (1642), a semi-automatic calculator 364
5.12 Charles Babbage's Difference Engine No. 1, built by Joseph Clement in 1832 367
5.13 Torrés y Quevedo's 1920s chess-playing machine 371
5.14 The structure of DNA 376
5.15 CA from Virtual Organisms 379
5.16 A Virtual Reality machine and user, as seen from real life 389
5.17 Stelarc's STIMBOD – a touch-screen interface for the remote manipulation of the body 401