Contents

Notes on contributors
 Foreward: the wild side of town
 CHRIS BAINES
 Introduction
 ANNA JORGENSEN

PART 1: THEORIZING WILDSCAPES

1. Learning from Detroit or ‘the wrong kind of ruins’
   CHRISTOPHER WOODWARD
   17

2. Appreciating urban wildscapes: towards a natural history of unnatural places
   PAUL H. GOBSTER
   33

3. Places to be wild in nature
   CATHARINE WARD THOMPSON
   65

4. Playing in industrial ruins: interrogating teleological understandings of play in spaces of material alterity and low surveillance
   TIM FDENSOR, BETHAN EVANS, JULIAN HOLLOWAY, STEVE MILLINGTON AND JON BINNIE
   80

   KATY MUGFORD
   86

PART 2: WILDSCAPE CASE STUDIES

6. Brown coal, blue paradise: the restoration of opencast coal mines in Lusatia, Germany
   RENEE DE WAAL AND ARJEN DE WIT
   99

   YICHEN LI
   111
Contents

PART 2: IMPLICATIONS FOR URBAN WILDSCAPE DESIGN

8 Christiania Copenhagen: a common out of the ordinary
   MARIA HELSTRÖM REIMER

9 The River Don as a linear urban wildscape
   IAN D. ROTHERHAM

10 Enhancing ruderal perennials in Manor Fields Park, Sheffield:
    a new park on the ‘bandit lands’ of urban green space
derection
   MARIAN TYLECOTE AND NIGEL DUNNETT

11 Pure urban nature: Nature-Park Südgelände, Berlin
   ANDREAS LANGER

12 Upstaging nature: art in Sydenham Hill Wood
   HELEN MORSE PALMER

13 Buried narratives
   CATHERINE HEATHERINGTON

14 Taming the wild: Gyllin’s Garden and the urbanization of a wildscape
   MATTIAS QVISTRÖM

15 Disordering public space: urban wildscape processes in practice
   DOUGAL SHERIDAN

16 Anti-planning, anti-design?: exploring alternative ways of making future urban landscapes
   ANNA JORGENSEN AND LILLI LIČKA

Illustration credits
Index