Chinese Film Stars

Edited by
Mary Farquhar and Yingjin Zhang
Contents

List of figures xiii
Acknowledgements xiv
Notes on contributors xvi

1 Introduction: Chinese film stars
   Yingjin Zhang and Mary Farquhar 1

PART I
Early cinema: crossing race and class divides 17

2 Anna May Wong: a border-crossing ‘minor’ star mediating performance
   Yiman Wang 19

3 Ruan Lingyu: reflections on an individual performance style
   Mette Hjort 32

4 Li Lili: acting a lively jianmei type
   Sean Macdonald 50

PART II
Socialist cinema: from film star to model worker 67

5 Mei Lanfang: facial signature and political performance in opera film
   John Zou 69

6 Zhao Dan: spectrality of martyrdom and stardom
   Yingjin Zhang 86
Contents

7 Zhang Ruifang: modelling the socialist Red Star
   Xiaoning Lu 97

8 Zhong Xinghuo: communist film worker
   Krista Van Fleet Hang 108

PART III
Taiwan cinema: diaspora, transvestism, non-professionalism 119

9 Ling Bo: orphanhood and post-war Sinophone film history
   Zhang Zhen 121

10 Brigitte Lin Ching Hsia: last Eastern star of the late twentieth century
    Tony Williams 139

11 Lee Kang-sheng: non-professional star
    Michael Lawrence 151

PART IV
Hong Kong and transnational cinema: action, gender, emotion 163

12 'Bruce Lee' after Bruce Lee: a life in conjectures
    Brian Hu 165

13 Jackie Chan: star work as pain and triumph
    Mary Farquhar 180

14 Chow Yun-fat: Hong Kong's modern TV xiaosheng
    Lin Feng 196

15 Leslie Cheung: star as autosexual
    Julian Stringer 207

16 Jet Li: star construction and fan discourse on the internet
    Sabrina Qiong Yu 225

Index 237

Figures

3.3(a) to (j) Stills from emotion

3.2(a) to (d) Stills from performance

3.1(a) to (f) Stills from

5.1 Mei in The housewife

5.2 Mei in A Conjecture of Death

5.3 Mei as the star of his own story

6.1 Zhao Dan in Asian movie

9.1 Asian movie

9.2 Xiao Juan

9.3 The one-arts hero

9.4 The star themselves

9.5 Ling Bo in housewife

12.1 Spectacle

12.2 James Bond

13.1 Wong Fei

13.2(a) and (b) Wong Fei...