

Melodrama After the Tears

New Perspectives on the Politics of Victimhood

Scott Loren and Jörg Metelmann (eds.)

Amsterdam University Press

Contents

Introduction	9
Scott Loren and Jörg Metelmann

I. Cultures of Suffering and Cinematic Identities

Melodrama and Victimhood: Modern, Political and Militant	35
Thomas Elsaesser
When Is Melodrama “Good”? Mega-Melodrama and Victimhood	53
Linda Williams
Melodrama and War in Hollywood Genre Cinema	81
Hermann Kappelhoff
Race Interactions: Film, Melodrama, and the Ambiguities of Colorism	107
Christof Decker
The Purloined Letter: Ophuls after Cavell	127
Ulrike Hanstein

II. Modernity and the Melodramatic Self

The Melodrama of the Self	157
Eva Illouz
Rousseau’s Nightmare	169
Vincent Kaufmann
“Emotional Suffering” as Universal Category? Victimhood and the Collective Imaginary	185
Jörg Metelmann

III. Collective Traumas and National Melodramas

III.1 Legacies of 9/11

Introduction to W. J. T. Mitchell, “The Abu Ghraib Archive”	205
Scott Loren
The Abu Ghraib Archive	207
W. J. T. Mitchell

The Melodramatic Style of American Politics	219
Elisabeth Anker
Tears of Testimony: Glenn Beck and the Conservative Moral Occult	247
Scott Loren

III.2 Holocaust Legacies

The Cultural Construction of the Holocaust Witness as a Melodramatic Hero	263
Amos Goldberg
Nation and Emotion: The Competition for Victimhood in Europe	281
Ulrich Schmid

Perspectives

Interview with Christine Gledhill	297
Scott Loren and Jörg Metelmann
Bibliography	311
Index of Film Titles	325
Index of Names	327