Sub-Saharan Africa

From Crisis to Sustainable Growth

A Long-Term Perspective Study

The World Bank
Washington, D.C.
Contents

Foreword by Barber B. Conable  xi

Definitions and data notes  xiii

Introduction and overview  1
   What have we learned?  2
   Outlook for the next generation  3
   A strategy for sustainable and equitable growth  4
   A strategic agenda for the 1990s  14

1 A thirty-year perspective: Past and future  16
   Past patterns and trends  16
   The deepening crisis  17
   Factors behind the decline  23
   The outlook for the next generation  30
   The challenge  33

2 Sustainable growth with equity  37
   A strategy for the next generation  37
   Growth that is sustainable and equitable  38
   Strengthening the enabling environment  47
   Building capacity  54
   The political and cultural dimensions  60
   International dimensions  61
   In conclusion  62

3 Investing in people  63
   Toward human-centered development  63
   Providing universal primary health care and reducing the population growth rate  65
   Food security and nutrition  72
   Primary education: revitalization and universalization  77
   Higher education, skill formation, and training  81
   The design and efficient management of human resource programs  84
   Sustained financial support for human resource development  87
9 A strategic agenda for the 1990s 185
The search for the high ground 185
A strategic agenda for the 1990s 189
Consensus building within Africa 192
Building consensus among the donors 193
Toward a global coalition for Africa 193

Bibliographical note 195

Statistical appendix 203