Trade Imbalance: The Struggle to Weigh Human Rights Concerns in Trade Policymaking

SUSAN ARIEL AARONSON, PH.D.
Business School,
George Washington University
Elliott School of International Affairs

JAMIE M. ZIMMERMAN
Senior Advisor, Global Assets Program,
New America Foundation
Contents

Abbreviations

Acknowledgments

1 Introduction: The Struggle to Weigh Human Rights in Trade Policymaking

2 The World Trade Organization and Human Rights: Providing Some Power to the People Some of the Time

3 South Africa: In the “Rainbow Nation” Trade and Human Rights Are Anything but Black-and-White

4 Brazil: Creating New Rules of the Road

5 The European Union: The Behemoth Is Not a Dinosaur

6 The United States: At Cross Purposes – Americans at the Intersection of Trade and Human Rights

7 Conclusion: How to Right the Trade Imbalance

Notes

Index