Industrial Competitiveness and Restructuring in Enlarged Europe

How Accession Countries Catch Up and Integrate in the European Union

Edited by

Iraj Hoshi
Staffordshire University, UK

Paul J.J. Welfens
University of Wuppertal, Germany

and

Anna Wziątek-Kubiak
Polish Academy of Sciences and Dąbrowa Górnicza Business School, Poland
Contents

List of Tables vii
List of Figures xii
Preface xiv
Notes on the Contributors xv
List of Abbreviations xvii

1. Introduction and Overview
   Anna Wziątek-Kubiak and Iraj Hoshi
   1

2. How Do New Member States Cope with Competition in the EU Market?
   Anna Wziątek-Kubiak and Iga Magda
   13

3. Can Government Policy Influence Industrial Competitiveness? Evidence from Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic
   Iraj Hoshi, Darko Hajdukovic and Erjon Luci
   50

4. Interdependency of Real Exchange Rate, Trade, Innovation, Structural Change and Growth
   Paul J.J. Welfens
   73

5. Divergent Growth Rates in Central and Eastern European Countries: An Alternative View
   Michael Brandmeier
   113

6. Networking and Competitiveness
   Richard Woodward and Piotr Wójcik
   133

   Krzysztof Marczewski and Krzysztof Szczygielski
   161

8. Structural Change, Productivity and Performance: Evidence from Irish Manufacturing
   Mary O'Donnell
   196

9. What Drives Trade Specialization in the New EU Member States?
   Dora Borbély
   225
10 Specialization and Integration of Accession Countries into the EU Market: An Alternative View 242
Michael Brandmeier

11 Policy Implications for New and Old Member States of the EU 263
Jorge Núñez Ferrer and David Kernohan

Index 299