Islamic Republic of Iran: Managing the Transition to a Market Economy

Abdelali Jbili, Vitali Kramarenko, and José Bailén

International Monetary Fund
Washington, DC
Contents

Acknowledgments vii
Abbreviations ix
Preface xi
Introduction xiii

1. Economic Growth 1
- Historical View of Growth Performance 1
- Determinants of Economic Growth 5
- Policy Lessons 14

2. The Financial Sector: Issues and Reforms 16
- Overview of the Financial System 18
- Governance and Regulatory Oversight 24
- Reform Agenda 28
- Conclusion 30

3. Moving toward a Market-Based Monetary Policy 32
- Lessons for Monetary Policy Implementation 32
- Next Steps 39
- Conclusion 44

4. Approaches to Assessing the Exchange Rate Level 46
- Exchange Rate Policy in Iran since 1993 47
- REER-Based Measures of Competitiveness 52
- Conclusion 61

5. Issues in Medium-Term Management of Oil Resources 63
- Long-Term Considerations 64
- Consistency of the Baseline Medium-Term Framework with Long-Term Parameters 72
- Conclusion 73
Appendixes

1. Data Sources and Methodology 75
3. The Oil Stabilization Fund 77
4. Subsidies 78

Bibliography 79

Boxes

1. Specialized Banks 19
3. Fiscal Dominance 33
4. Optimal Consumption from Hydrocarbon Wealth 65

Tables

1. MENA Region: Economic Growth, 1960–2002 4
2. Sources of Economic Growth (Raw Labor), 1960–2002 7
3. Sources of Economic Growth (Education), 1960–2002 8
5. Average Sectoral Growth, 1960–2002 12
7. Comparative Financial Development Indicators, 2000–01 17
8. Financial Soundness Indicators, 2003/04 21
12. Monetary Targets, 1989/90–2004/05 34
15. Normative Current Account Balance, 2004 60
17. Parameters of Oil and Gas Wealth Estimates 68
18. Consumption from Oil Wealth 69

Figures

1. GDP Growth Rates, 1960–2002 2
3. Oil GDP and Oil and Import Prices Ratio, 1960–2002 3
11. Real Effective Exchange Rate Indices, 1993–2004 54
12. REER, M2, and Real Oil Price, 1993–2003 56
15. Constant per Capita Real Consumption from Oil Wealth, 2003–83 70