BARING BROTHERS AND THE BIRTH OF MODERN FINANCE

BY

Peter E. Austin

LONDON
PICKERING & CHATTO
2007
CONTENTS

List of Charts, Tables and Figures vii
Nomenclature ix
Chronology xi
Introduction 1
1 Growth of Confidence (1763–1828) 9
   Establishment and Early Reputation-Building 10
   Barings and America 14
   Troubles of 1825 and Reorganization of the Partnership 20
2 Opportunity and System (1828–30) 29
   Foreign Investor Interest in the United States 30
   General Domestic and Foreign Trade Profile 32
   Credit Arrangements and Trade Mechanics 36
   The New Partnership 40
   Rules and Principles 45
3 Good Timing (1830–2) 51
   Cornerstone Connections 52
   Trough Opportunities and British Malaise 55
   A Worldwide System 64
   The Deferred Threes 72
   Barings Makes a Deal 78
4 Silver Linings (1832–4) 81
   Impediments to Business 81
   Continued American Expansion 88
   Jackson, the Bank and Money Disruption 93
   Barings’ First Trimming 106
5 Changing Too Soon (1835–6) 119
   American Demand Unbound (1835) 120
   Ward’s Urgings 123
   The House Waits 127
   Barings’ Second Trimming 129
   America Moves ‘Too Fast’ 135
London's Restraint and Jackson's Gold 142
Threadneedle Street Awakes 148
6 Barings Alone (1837–9) 155
   Tense Calm 155
   Assistance Amidst Collapse 160
   Van Buren Holds Firm 167
   Aftermath 174
Conclusion 181
   More Reform 181
   Who to Blame; Well Informed People Make Poor Decisions; Good Timing 182
   Competitors' Risky Behaviour; Panic's Effect on Barings 186
Epilogue: Argentina and Singapore (1890, 1995) 191
   Argentina: 1890 191
   Singapore: 1995 193
   Pride Maintained 199
Notes 203
Glossary 245
Bibliography 249
Index 259