Contents

Acknowledgments xi

1 The expansion of capital, oil scarcity and the contradiction of space 1

2 Contradictions of capitalist accumulation: inter-capitalist competition, the production of raw material and the contradiction of space 13

   The elements of labor and the mutual dependence of the branches of industry 16
   The contradictions of capitalist accumulation 19
   Land and landed property: the conditions and barriers to capital accumulation 39
   Raw material and the accumulation of capital 45

3 Imperialism and the geographical contradictions of monopoly capital 48

   Contradiction of space, inter-capitalist competition and the centralization of capital 50
   The contradictory fusion of monopoly capital and the imperialist state 54
   Imperialism 58
   Imperialist globalization and the production of contradictory space 64
   Cold globalization: inter-imperialist rivalry in the post-war period 68
   Neoliberal imperialism 79
Contents

4 Oil in the development and decline of the Soviet Union 95
   Oil in the command economy: the rise 96
   The thrust eastward 100
   The first Cold War: the great leap into the world market 101
   The Soviet oil crisis and the second Cold War 103
   Oil in the command economy: the fall 104
   Conclusion 108

5 Geographical contradictions of state and capital in the development of Russian oil: competition for Russia, competition with Russia 110
   Centralization and nationalization of Russian oil capital 113
   Inter-capitalist competition and international centralization of Russian oil 118
   Conclusion 121

6 Geographical contradictions of Iranian oil: capital versus the law 123
   US sanctions: the struggle with Iran, the struggle for Iran 127
   Capital versus the law 138
   Conclusion 149

Notes 153
Bibliography 166
Index 173