Contents

List of figures ix
Preface xii
Translator's note xii

Introduction: orientation in economic-ethical thinking 1

Part I Fundamental concepts of modern ethics and the approach of integrative economic ethics 11

1 The phenomenon of human morality: the normative logic of interpersonal relations 13
1.1 The moral disposition as part of the conditio humana 13
1.2 Morals and ethos as two sides of lived morality 19
1.3 Modern ethics and the problem of relativism 25
1.4 The humanistic core of the moral principle: the normative logic of interpersonal relations 31
1.5 The developmental stages of moral consciousness 37

2 The moral point of view: philosophical developmental lines of rational ethics 43
2.1 The Golden Rule and the Judaeo-Christian commandment to love one's neighbour 44
2.2 The standpoint of the impartial spectator (Adam Smith) 48
2.3 The categorical imperative (Immanuel Kant) 52
2.4 The rule-utilitarian generalization criterion 57
2.5 Discourse ethics 62

3 Morality and economic rationality: integrative economic ethics as the rational ethics of economic activity 79
3.1 Economic ethics as applied ethics? 80
3.2 Economic ethics as normative economics? 89
3.3 The integrative approach: economic ethics as critical reflection on the foundations of economic reason 100
Part II  Reflections on the foundations of economic ethics I:
a critique of economism

4 'Inherent necessity' of competition? A critique of economic determinism

4.1 The origins of modern market economy: the calvinistic ethos as a context of motivation
4.2 The systemic character of modern market economy: the 'free' market as a coercive context
4.3 The partiality of inherent necessity and the economic-ethical problem of reasonable expectation

5 'Morality' of the market? A critique of economic reductionism

5.1 Historical and doctrinal background I: the prestabilized harmony in the economic cosmos (classical period)
5.2 Historical and doctrinal background II: the utilitarian fiction of common good (early neoclassical period)
5.3 Methodological individualism and the normative logic of mutual advantage (pure economics)

Part III  Reflections on the foundations of economic ethics II:
rational economic activity and the lifeworld

6 The question of meaning: economic activity and the good life

6.1 The elementary sense of economic activity: securing the means of human subsistence
6.2 The advanced meaning of economic activity: furthering the abundance of human life
6.3 The discovery of personal meaning under conditions of competitive self-assertion

7 The question of legitimation: economic activity and the just social life

7.1 Fundamental moral rights as the ethical-political basis of legitimation
7.2 The well-ordered society and the conditions of legitimate inequality: on John Rawls's principles of justice
7.3 Economic citizenship rights as the basis of real freedom for all

Part IV  A topology of economic ethics: the 'sites' of morality in economic life

8 Economic citizen's ethics

8.1 The basic problem of civic ethics: liberal society and republican virtue
8.2 Deliberative politics: the public sphere as the site of economic citizens' shared responsibility
8.3 Professional and private life as sites of economic citizens' self-commitment
Contents

9 Regulatory ethics
9.1 The basic problem of regulatory ethics: market logic and 'vital policy' 315
9.2 Deliberative order politics: the market framework as a site of morality – whose morality? 341
9.3 The global question: competition of national market frameworks or supranational sites of regulatory morality? 359

10 Corporate ethics
10.1 The basic problem of corporate ethics: 'profit principle' and legitimate business activity 376
10.2 Instrumentalist, charitable, corrective or integrative corporate ethics? 379
10.3 Deliberative corporate policy-making: the 'stakeholder dialogue' as a site of business morality 398
10.4 Elements of an integrative ethical programme for corporations 418

Bibliography 443
Index of subjects 471
Index of names 479