GOVERNANCE REFORM
UNDER REAL-WORLD CONDITIONS
Citizens, Stakeholders, and Voice

SINA ODUGBEMI
AND
THOMAS JACOBSON
Editors

THE WORLD BANK
Washington, DC
Contents

About the Editors and Authors xi
Acknowledgments xvii
Abbreviations xix

1 Governance Reform under Real-World Conditions 1

Part I Using Political Analysis to Guide Communication Strategies 13

2 Public Opinion, the Public Sphere, and Quality of Governance: An Exploration 15
Sina Odugbemi

3 Citizen Voice and the Public Sphere: Scoping Communication Challenges 39
Thomas Jacobson and Antonio G. Lambino II

4 Dialogues as Communication Strategy in Governance Reform 65
J. P. Singh

5 The Political Economy of Reform: Role of the Internal “Journalist” 75
Sumir Lal
Part II  Securing Political Will  93

6  Creating Space for Effective Political Engagement in Development  95
Matthew Andrews

7  Using Public Will to Secure Political Will  113
Lori Ann Post, Charles T. Salmon, and Amber N. W. Raile

8  Organizing a Deliberative Participatory Process: What Does the Science Say?  125
Thomas Webler and Seth Tuler

Part III  Gaining the Support of Public Sector Middle Managers  161

9  Governance, Stakeholder Involvement, and New Communication Models  163
Stanley Deetz and Lisa Irvin

10  Public Sector Middle Managers: The Critical Link to Driving Public Sector Reforms  181
Peter Malinga

11  Working Appreciatively to Foster Cultures of Public Service  195
J. Kevin Barge

Part IV  Building Broad Coalitions of Pro-Change Influentials  207

12  Participation as Dialogue, Debate, and Negotiation: Entangled Promises and Practices  209
John Forester

13  A Consensus-Based, Stakeholder-Driven, and Decentralized Approach to Building Broad Coalitions for Water Sector Reforms  219
George O. Krhoda

14  Building Pro-Change Multisectoral Coalitions to Overcome the Resistance of Powerful Vested Interests  233
Robert de Quelen
Part V  Transforming Indifferent or Hostile Public Opinion  249

15 Journalistic Framing and Media Relations for Marginalized Groups  251
Karen S. Johnson-Cartee

16 Transforming Adverse Public Opinion into Support for Reforms  265
Rey Anthony G. David, Jr.

17 Six Big Ideas: ICT as a Vital Tool for Reform  271
Phil Noble

Part VI Instigating Citizen Demand for Good Governance  275

18 Consulting the Public—Thoughtfully  277
James S. Fishkin

19 The Power of Organized Citizens: Fighting for Public Integrity  287
David Cohen

20 Cultivating Deliberative Development: Public Deliberation as a Means of Improving Local, State, and Federal Governance  303
John Gastil

21 Knowledge for Policy Making: Some Questions and Caveats  317
David E. Apter

Case Studies  331

1 Participation, Transparency, and Consensus Building in Support of Public Sector Reform: The Case of Nicaragua  333
Michele Bruni

2 Communication, Coalition Building, and Development: Public Enterprise Reform in West Bengal and Orissa States, India  355
S.J. Masty

3 Slovakia: Public Opinion and Reform  391
4 Building Support for the Rule of Law in Georgia 397
José-Manuel Bassat

5 Tax Reform and Communication in Bulgaria: Getting It Right 413

6 Political Economy of Reforms: Learning from the Delhi Water Sector Experience 419
Avjeet Singh

7 Mobilizing Middle Managers While Keeping Opponents at Bay: Implementing the Philippine Procurement Law 431
Cecilia Cabañero-Verzosa

8 “We Didn’t Know People Like Me Could Ask Questions Like This”: A Dialogue in Bangladesh 449
David Prosser

9 Public Consultation through Deliberation in China: The First Chinese Deliberative Poll 461
James S. Fishkin, Baogang He, and Alice Siu

Appendix 477

Appendices 479

Index 503

Fold-Out Poster

The Grounding Path of Governance Reform