Contents

- List of figures: xv
- List of tables: xvii
- Notes on contributors: xxi
- Acknowledgements: xxv
- List of abbreviations: xxvii

PART I

Introducing the ESeC

1 The European Socio-economic Classification: a prolegomenon

DAVID ROSE, ERIC HARRISON AND DAVID PEVALIN

- Introduction: 3
- What is a 'socio-economic classification'? 4
- Why is an ESeC needed? 6
- The importance of conceptual approaches 8
- The ESeC classes explained 10
- The ESeC classes described 14
- The validation of ESeC 21
- The contributions to this book 29
- Conclusions 36

2 From derivation to validation: evidence from the UK and beyond

ERIC HARRISON AND DAVID ROSE

- From EGP to NS-SEC to ESeC 39
- Measuring occupation cross-nationally using ISCO 41
- Refining the classification: from eight to ten classes 43
- ESeC in conditions of incomplete information 45
PART I

The application of ESeC to three sources of comparative European data

RHYS DAVIES AND PETER ELIAS

Introduction 61
Information requirements 61
Description of data sources 63
Constructing ESeC: the derivation of employment status 64
Occupational composition 74
ESeC distributions 76
Allocating the non-employed to ESeC 79
Deriving a household ESeC 82
Concluding comments 85

PART II

Measuring social class

4 Social class and employment relations: comparisons between the ESeC and EGP class schemas using European data

ERIK BIHAGEN, MAGNUS NERMO AND ROBERT ERIKSON

Introduction 89
Class and employment relationships 90
Data and variables 92
Results 95
Concluding remarks 103
Appendix A: ESS data: reductions of the sample size 105
Appendix B: Country-level analyses 105

5 Measuring social class: the case of Germany

HEIKE WIRTH, CORNELIA GRESCH, WALTER MÜLLER, REINHARD POLLAK AND FELIX WEISS

Introduction 114
The construction of the German national ESeC 116
The operationalization of the various versions of ESeC with the BIBB/IAB database 118
The employment relations (ER) indicators 119
Differences in OUG composition and class distribution between the German and the international variants of the ESeC classification 122
Criterion validity of the different ESeC versions 129
Discussion 133

6 The comparative measurement of supervisory status 138
REINHARD POLLAK, GERRIT BAUER, WALTER MÜLLER, FELIX WEISS AND HEIKE WIRTH
Introduction 138
Measures of supervisory status and characteristics of supervisors identified 138
Operationalization of supervisory status in the ESS and LFS 148
Discussion 154

7 Stable and consistent with the employment relations theoretical background? Does the prototype ESeC show these qualities with French data? 158
CÉCILE BROUSSE, OLIVIER MONSO AND LOUP WOLFF
Introduction 158
Using automatic classification techniques to test prototype ESeC 159
Occupational mobility measured with prototype ESeC and an empirical classification: how much mobility does ESeC create? 168
Changes in supervisory functions since the 1980s: towards a trend in the growth of blurring in the ESeC prototype? 172
Appendix: The prototype ESeC and empirical classifications of wage earners 176

PART III
Using ESeC in comparative research on social class 179

8 The effectiveness of ESeC and EGP in clustering occupations: a study of occupational wage growth in Sweden 181
ERIK BIHAGEN AND MAGNUS NERMO
Introduction 181
Wage growth and class 182
Measuring the wage growth of occupations 183
Contents

Data and methods 184
Results 186
Discussion 188

9 Class and poverty: cross-sectional and dynamic analysis of income poverty and lifestyle deprivation 191
DOROTHY WATSON, CHRISTOPHER T. WHELAN AND BERTRAND MAÎTRE

Introduction 191
Approach 192
Methodology 194
Variation in income and lifestyle deprivation by ESeC 200
Risk of poverty and deprivation 203
Persistent poverty, persistent deprivation and ESeC 206
Cross-classifying forms of persistence 208
Conclusions 214

10 Using the ESeC to describe socio-economic inequalities in health in Europe 216
ANTON E. KUNST AND ALBERT-JAN ROSKAM

Introduction 216
Expectations regarding the performance of the ESeC schema 218
Materials 219
Statistical analyses 220
Class differences in health 223
The role of education and current income 225
Class assignment at household level 227
Summary and evaluation of results 230
Further research 233

11 Unemployment risks in four EU countries: a validation study of the ESeC 235
MARIO LUCCHINI AND ANTONIO SCHIZZEROTTO

Introduction and aims 235
Data, methods and variables 236
Results 237
Conclusions 242
12 Class of origin and educational inequalities in contemporary Italy: a validation analysis of the ESeC 245
CARLO BARONE, ANTONIO SCHIZZEROTTO AND ROBERTA BARONE

| Contents |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| 12              | Class of origin and educational inequalities in contemporary Italy: a validation analysis of the ESeC 245 |
| Introduction    | 245             |
| Class inequalities in the Italian educational system | 246 |
| Data and methods | 247             |
| The analysis of educational transitions with ESeC | 249 |
| Log-linear analyses of trends over time in class inequality of educational opportunity | 254 |
| A comparison between ESeC and EGP | 255 |
| Concluding remarks | 257 |
| Appendix A: Remarks on the allocation of employers between ESeC classes 1 and 4 | 260 |
| Appendix B: Descriptive tables on the relationship between parental ESeC class and educational outcomes | 262 |

PART IV
Conclusions 265

13 ESeC in retrospect and prospect: an epilogue 267
DAVID ROSE AND ERIC HARRISON

| Contents |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| 13              | ESeC in retrospect and prospect: an epilogue 267 |
| Introduction    | 267             |
| Retrospect      | 270             |
| Prospect        | 276             |
| Conclusions     | 289             |
| Appendix A: Proposed ESeC SEGs | 292 |
| Appendix B: Some comments on (1) the Ganzeboom and (2) the Leilufsrud and Bison operationalizations of EGP | 294 |

Bibliography 299
Author index 314
Subject index 316