Table of Contents

Preface..............................................................................................................................................i

Paul Turpin, Dept. of Communication, University of the Pacific
Director, Millikin University 2005 Conference on Rhetoric & Economics

Acknowledgments ..........................................................................................................................iii

Foreword........................................................................................................................................v

“How to Buy, Sell, Make, Manage, Produce, Transact, Consume, with Words”
Deirdre McCloskey
University of Illinois at Chicago

Introduction......................................................................................................................................1

Edward M. Clift
Woodbury University
Los Angeles

Chapter 1

Rhetoric, Markets, and Value Creation:
Notes towards a Productive Rhetoric .........................................................................................7
Locke Carter, Texas Tech University

Chapter 2

J. S. Mill’s Art and Business of Life and the Humility of Bona Fide Scholarship ..............................................................................35
David Gore, Texas A&M

Chapter 3

The Meaning-Surplus of Rhetoric and Hermeneutics:
Metaphor and Humanism in Economics...................................................................................53
Till Döppe, University of Rotterdam
Chapter 4

The State of Economic Methodology in the Education of Economics in Iran
Mohammad Hassan Fotros, Bu-Ali Sina University

Chapter 5

Neoliberalism and Rhetoric: The Brazilian Chapter
Leda Maria Paulani, University of São Paulo

Chapter 6

Teaching Rhetoric with Economics: A Canon of Eloquence, Truth, Lies, or All of the Above?
Ken Baake, Texas Tech University

Chapter 7

Negotiating Transaction Cost Economics: Oliver Williamson and his Audiences
Huáscar F. Pessali, Federal University of Pananá
Ramón G. Fernández, São Paulo School of Economics

Chapter 8

The Cameelious Hump and 'Just-So Stories' in Economic Literature—A Linguistic Analysis
Benedikt Szmrecsanyi, University of Freiburg
Nils Goldschmidt, Walter Eucken Institute

Chapter 9

Making Rhetoric Work: An Analysis of the Work of Robert Putnam
Leonardo M. Monasterio, Federal University of Pelotas
Ramon G. Fernandez, São Paulo School of Economics
Chapter 10
The Rhetoricity of Enterprise ................................................................. 209
Dale Cyphert, U. of Northern Iowa

Chapter 11
Making McCloskey's Rhetoric Empirical: Company Law
and Tragedies of the Commons in Nineteenth-Century Britain .......... 227
Wade E. Shilts, Luther College

Chapter 12
The Devil and the Angel Whispering in the Spouse's Ear: Protecting the Sanctity of the Marriage between Antitrust and Economics ............. 267
Benjamin Balak, Rollins College
Jonathan M. Lave, J.D.

Chapter 13
Inventing Markets: Limits of Construction, Limits of Fact .................. 331
Michael Salvo, Purdue University

Chapter 14
Economic Externalities and Ecologies:
Opportunities to Solve Market Failures that Cause Air Pollution ......... 341
Joseph Siry, Rollins College

Chapter 15
The Market as Metaphor: Four Stories of the Market at U.S. Policy Think Tanks ................................................................. 349
Peter-Wim Zuidhof, Erasmus University

Chapter 16
Money Talks: Alan Greenspan and the Voice of Capital ..................... 407
Geoffrey D. Klinger, DePauw University
Chapter 17

Premonition as Profit: Hyper-Capitalism and the Cultivation of Anxiety .......................... 435
Edward M. Clift, Woodbury University

Index ............................................................................................................. 461