Part I

Introduction

Chapter 1  Key terminology and evolution of e-business

Chapter at a glance  3
Learning outcomes  3
Introduction  4

1.1  Key terminology  4
  1.1.1  e-Business  4
  1.1.2  Electronic commerce  4
  1.1.3  Mobile e-commerce  4

FT article  It’s too early for e-business to drop its ‘e’  5
  1.1.4  The concept of strategy  6
  1.1.5  The concept of value creation and capturing  9

1.2  The evolution of e-business  10
  1.2.1  The grassroots of e-business  14

FT article  Minitel proves a mixed blessing  15
  1.2.2  The rise of the Internet  16

FT article  Burning money at Boo: the founders of the famous Internet company were fools rather than knaves  18
  1.2.3  The crash  19

FT article  Webvan’s billion-dollar mistake  22
  1.2.4  The synergy phase  23

FT article  From Netscape to the Next Big Thing: how a dotcom decade changed our lives  24

Blog box  Google acquires Internet (May 2017)  28

Summary  29
Review questions  30
Part II  The e-business strategy framework

Chapter 2  Overview of the e-business strategy framework

Chapter at a glance
Learning outcomes
Introduction
2.1  Key challenges in e-business strategy formulation
2.2  A systematic approach to e-business strategy formulation
Summary
Review questions
Recommended key reading
Notes and references

Chapter 3  External analysis: the impact of the Internet on the macro-environment and on the industry structure of e-business companies

Chapter at a glance
Related case studies
Learning outcomes
Introduction
3.1  Examining trends in the macro-environment
  3.1.1  The political and legal environment
  FT article  E-business: The odds lengthen
  3.1.2  The economic environment
  3.1.3  The social environment
  FT article  Get a second life
  3.1.4  The natural environment
Blog box  First zero-emission home delivery vans hit the roads in Shrewsbury
  3.1.5  The technological environment
3.2  Examining industry structure with the five forces framework
  3.2.1  Industry rivalry
  3.2.2  Barriers to entry
  3.2.3  Substitute products
  3.2.4  Bargaining powers of buyers and suppliers
  FT article  All eyes on Google advertising
3.3  Complementing the five forces framework with the co-opetition framework
Technology (ICT) has in transforming the way we work and communicate. This book provides a comprehensive look at the latest developments in e-commerce, supply chain management, and m-commerce strategies. It is critical for organisations to develop strategic thinking and adapt to the changing landscape of e-business.
Chapter 7  Exploiting opportunities of new market spaces in e-business

Chapter at a glance
Related case studies
Learning outcomes
Introduction

7.1 Gaining insights into new market spaces through the value curve
7.2 Looking outside one’s own box

FT article  Dell’s move from PCs into complementary products

7.3 Pinpointing possibilities for new value creation
7.4 Finding the right time to enter a market
7.4.1 Early-mover advantages

FT article  Apple’s sound strategy for the i-Pod
7.4.2 Early-mover disadvantages

Summary
Review questions
Discussion questions
Recommended key reading
Useful third-party weblinks
Notes and references

Chapter 8  Creating and capturing value through e-business strategies: the value-process framework

Chapter at a glance
Related case studies
Learning outcomes
Introduction

8.1 The value-process framework for e-business strategies
8.1.1 Creating value
8.1.2 Capturing value

8.2 Integrating strategic management analyses through the VPF
8.2.1 The value chain analysis and the VPF
8.2.2 The five forces analysis and the VPF

8.3 Sony BMG (Germany): an actual application of the VPF
8.3.1 The business context
8.3.2 Value creation
8.3.3 Value capturing
8.3.4 Findings

Summary
Review questions
Discussion questions
Recommended key reading
Notes and references

xii
Chapter 9 Choosing the appropriate strategy for the internal organisation of e-business activities

Chapter at a glance 172
Related case studies 172
Learning outcomes 172
Introduction 173

9.1 Reasons determining 'make-or-buy' decisions in e-business

9.1.1 Reasons favouring 'make' decisions 175
9.1.2 Reasons favouring 'buy' decisions 177

FT article The open source movement has great promise 178

9.2 Choosing the organisational structure for e-business activities 180

9.2.1 Separate e-business organisation 181
9.2.2 Integrated e-business organisation 182

FT article Chapter close for online books venture 182

9.3 Value chain deconstruction over the Internet 183

9.4 Unbundling the corporation over the Internet 185

Critical perspective 9.1 The limitations of deconstruction and unbundling 185

FT article Outsourcing: The shrinking IT department 188

9.5 Managing conflicts between online and offline distribution channels 189

Summary 191
Review questions 191
Discussion questions 192
Recommended key reading 192
Useful third-party weblinks 193
Notes and references 193

Chapter 10 Choosing the appropriate strategy for interaction with suppliers 194

Chapter at a glance 194
Related case studies 194
Learning outcomes 194
Introduction 195

10.1 Advantages and drawbacks of online purchasing 195

FT article Competing supply chains are the future 197

10.2 Classification of B2B e-marketplaces based on the purchasing process and the purchased products 198

Blog box Grainger's MRO hub on the Internet 200

10.3 Classification of B2B e-marketplaces based on their degree of openness 201

10.4 Integrating e-procurement systems 202
Chapter 11 Choosing the appropriate e-business strategy for interacting with users

11.1 The Internet and social commerce
11.1.1 The advent of Web 2.0
11.1.2 Web 2.0 services
11.1.3 Understanding user behaviour on the social web

11.2 The trade-off between richness and reach

11.3 Increasing the richness of interactions with customers
11.3.1 Electronic customer relationship management (e-CRM)
11.3.2 The concept of mass customisation

11.4 Increasing the reach of interactions with customers
11.4.1 Viral growth
11.4.2 The 'tipping point' concept
11.4.3 The 'long tail' of Internet-based social networks

FT article Advertisers discover the merits of networking

Critical perspective 11.1 The limitations to blowing up the trade-off between richness and reach

Critical perspective 11.2 Is there unlimited choice and does it create unlimited demand?

Chapter 12 Moving from wired e-commerce to mobile e-commerce

Chapter at a glance
Related case studies
Learning outcomes 230
Introduction 231

12.1 Mobility and unwired e-commerce 231
   12.1.1 Understanding the value network of mobile e-commerce 231
   12.1.2 Segmenting mobile e-commerce consumers and business services 233

FT article Barcode hope for mobile advertising 236
   12.1.3 Comparison of mobile e-commerce with wired e-commerce 237

12.2 Strategy and mobility 238
   12.2.1 Leveraging wireless technologies to create a competitive advantage 238
   12.2.2 Impact of wireless technologies on a company’s value chain 239

FT article Mobile marketing: The most personal way to reach out 242
   12.2.3 Influence of wireless technologies on the industry’s five forces 243

FT article Little harmony in mobile music 245

Summary 246
Review questions 247
Discussion questions 247
Recommended key reading 247
Useful third-party weblinks 247
Notes and references 248

Part III A roadmap for e-business strategy implementation

Chapter 13 A roadmap for e-business strategy implementation 251

Chapter at a glance 251
Learning outcomes 251
Introduction 252

13.1 What is the mission of our company? 253

13.2 What are the objectives for our e-business strategy? 255

13.3 What value do we want to offer through our e-business strategy? 255
   13.3.1 What type of competitive advantage do we aim for? 255
   13.3.2 How much breadth do we want to have in our product and service offerings? 256

13.4 What are the customer segments to target and what is our value proposition for each segment? 257

13.5 What kind of ethical issues, privacy concerns and security risks do we need to consider? 257
   13.5.1 Dealing with ethical issues and privacy concerns 257

FT article Google’s algorithm of life: rejoice and be wary 258
   13.5.2 Addressing security risks 260

13.6 Should we implement our e-business strategy alone or with external partners? 261

13.7 What organisational structure should our e-business activities have? 261
13.8 What is our cost and revenue model?
   13.8.1 What is the cost structure of our e-business activities?
   13.8.2 What is the revenue structure of our e-business activities?

13.9 How should we align our physical-world strategy with our e-strategy?

Summary 265
Review questions 265
Discussion questions 265
Recommended key reading 266
Notes and references 266

Part IV Case studies

Chapter 14 Building e-business competence through concepts and cases 269

Chapter at a glance 269
Learning outcomes 269
Introduction 270

14.1 Defining creativity and analytical ability 271
   14.1.1 Creativity 271
   FT article Breaking the barriers to creativity 272
   14.1.2 Analytical ability 275

14.2 Becoming a 'catalyst for change' 275

14.3 Learning about e-business through case studies 276
   14.3.1 Case studies as a context for the analysis of e-business issues 277
   14.3.2 Case studies as a context for the application of e-business concepts 277
   14.3.3 Case studies as a stimulus for creative e-business strategies 277

Strategy in action 14.1 Business thinking: on finding the right balance between analysis and intuition 279

14.4 Learning about e-business through concepts and frameworks 279
   14.4.1 Extending the breadth of the analysis 283
   14.4.2 Extending the depth of the analysis 284

Strategy in action 14.2 'Why?' – the importance of questions in strategy formulation 286

Summary 287
Review questions 287
Discussion questions 288
Recommended key reading 288
Useful third-party weblinks 289
Notes and references 289

A guide to the main focus of the case studies 290

Synopses of case studies 291

Business-to-consumer (B2C) e-commerce in retailing 291
Detailed contents

1  From A(apples) to Z(oom lenses): extending the boundaries of multichannel retailing at Tesco.com  291

B2C e-commerce in financial services  291
2  From e-banking to e-business at Nordea (Scandinavia): the world’s biggest clicks-and-mortar bank  291
3  ING DIRECT: rebel in the banking industry  292

B2C e-commerce in manufacturing  292
4  Ducati (Italy) vs. Harley-Davidson (USA): innovating business processes and managing value networks  292
5  Otis Elevator: accelerating business transformation with IT  292

Business-to-business (B2B) e-commerce  293
7  Covisint (A): the evolution of a B2B marketplace  293
8  IBX (Northern Europe): expanding B2B e-purchasing from indirect to direct goods and services  293
9  eBay customer support outsourcing  294

Corporate Internet portals  294
10  The exploration and production enterprise portal of the Royal Dutch/Shell Group  294

e-Government  295
11  e-Government in Estonia: establishing the world’s leading information society  295

The peer-to-peer (P2P) model  295
12  Online file-sharing: the music industry’s paradigm shift  295

Virtual online communities and user-generated content  296
13  openBC vs. StayFriends: Germany’s biggest Internet-based social networking sites  296
14  Spreadshirt: mass customization on the Internet  296
15  Second Life: Mercedes-Benz enters the Metaverse  296

Mobile e-commerce  297
16  Mobile phone meets digital music at Sony BMG  297
17  NTT DoCoMo (Japan): moving from a mobile phone operator to a lifestyle service provider  297
18  YOC AG: integrating the mobile phone into the marketing mix  298
19  Paybox.net (Germany): a mobile payment service  298

Case studies
1  From A(apples) to Z(oom lenses): Extending the boundaries of multichannel retailing at Tesco.com  299
2  From e-banking to e-business at Nordea (Scandinavia): The world’s biggest clicks-and-mortar bank  314
3  ING DIRECT: Rebel in the banking industry  330
4  Ducati (Italy) vs. Harley-Davidson (USA): Innovating business processes and managing value networks  343
| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>Otis Elevator: Accelerating business transformation with IT</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>Covisint (A): The evolution of a B2B marketplace</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>IBX (Northern Europe): Expanding B2B ePurchasing from indirect to direct goods and services</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>eBay® customer support outsourcing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>The exploration and production enterprise portal of the Royal Dutch/Shell Group</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>e-Government in Estonia: Establishing the world’s leading information society</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>Online file-sharing: The music industry’s paradigm shift</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>openBC vs. StayFriends: Germany’s biggest Internet-based social networking sites</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>Spreadshirt: Mass customization on the Internet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>Second Life: Mercedes-Benz enters the Metaverse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16</td>
<td>Mobile phone meets digital music at Sony BMG</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>NTT DoCoMo (Japan): Moving from a mobile phone operator to a lifestyle service provider</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18</td>
<td>YOC AG: Integrating the mobile phone into the marketing mix</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19</td>
<td>Paybox.net (Germany): A mobile payment service</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Index 615