Fortifying China

The Struggle to Build a Modern Defense Economy

TAI MING CHEUNG

Cornell University Press

ITHACA AND LONDON
Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments  ix
Abbreviations  xiii

1. Bridging the Civil-Military Technological Divide in the Information Age  1
   Integrating the Civilian and Defense Economies  2
   China’s Enduring Quest for Wealth and Military Power  5
   The National Innovation Systems Framework  9
   Examining the Defense Economy through the NIS Prism  13
   Understanding How Defense Technological Innovation Takes Place  16

2. Innovation and Stagnation during the Maoist Era  22
   The Building of the Conventional and Strategic Weapons Bases  23
   The Defense Economy’s Relationship with the Maoist NIS  25
   The Setup of the Conventional and Strategic Weapons Systems  26
   The Floundering of the Conventional Defense Industrial System  31
   Barriers to Conventional Weapons Innovation  36
   The Flourishing of the Strategic Weapons System  40
   The Consolidation of the Defense Economy in the Late 1970s  48

3. The Eclipse of the Defense Economy under Deng Xiaoping  52
   The Defense Economy and Its Relationship with the NIS in the 1980s  53
   Defense Conversion  60
   The Impact of Conversion on the Defense Economy  73