The Political Economy of Media
Enduring Issues, Emerging Dilemmas

Robert W. McChesney

MONTHLY REVIEW PRESS
New York
Contents

PREFACE 7

INTRODUCTION 11

I. JOURNALISM 23

1. The Problem of Journalism 25
2. A Century of Radical Media Criticism in the United States 67
3. Upton Sinclair and the Contradictions of Capitalist Journalism 83
4. Telling the Truth at a Moment of Truth: U.S. News Media and the Invasion and Occupation of Iraq 97
5. How to Think About Journalism: Looking Backward, Going Forward 117

II. CRITICAL STUDIES 155

9. Public Broadcasting in the Age of Communication Revolution 233
10. The New Theology of the First Amendment: Class Privilege Over Democracy 249
11. The Commercial Tidal Wave 265
12. Noam Chomsky and the Struggle Against Neoliberalism 283
14. The Political Economy of International Communications 305

III. POLITICS AND MEDIA REFORM 339
15. Off-Limits: An Inquiry into the Lack of Debate Over the Ownership, Structure, and Control of the Media in U.S. Political Life 341
16. The Internet and U.S. Communication Policymaking in Historical and Critical Perspective 355
17. U.S. Left and Media Politics 383
18. Global Media and Its Discontents 393
19. Theses on Media Deregulation
20. Rich Media, Poor Democracy: Communication Politics in Dubious Times 425
21. The Case for U.S. Public Broadcasting and Implications for Philanthropists 445
22. The Escalating War Against Corporate Media 461
23. The U.S. Media Reform Movement Going Forward 491

NOTES 501

INDEX 569