Economics Versus Human Rights

Manuel Couret Branco
Contents

Introduction 1

1 Economics and human rights lost in translation 8
   The economic dimension of human rights 8
   The conflicting languages of economics and human rights 17

2 Economics versus the right to work 25
   Genesis and definition of the right to work 25
   The conflicting natures of economics and the right to work 30
   What does securing the right to work mean? 38
   Employment policies and the right to work 39
   Economics for the right to work 48

3 Economics versus the provision of goods and services as human rights 50
   Economics versus the right to water 50
   Market hegemony versus the right to water 55
   Economics versus the right to social security 59

4 Economics versus cultural freedom 67
   Culture and economic theory 68
   The political economy of cultural exclusion 72
   Cultural determinism and economic performance 75
   On the cultural roots of authoritarianism 88
   The unbearable lightness of cultural determinism 90
Contents

5  Economics versus democracy 97
   Democracy and human rights 98
   The naturalization of economics 101
   Scientific rationality versus democratic rationality 105
   The hegemony of market ideology 109

6  Globalization versus democracy 118
   What is the global economy? 118
   The territorialization of democracy versus the deterritorialization of the global economy 120
   International institutions and democracy 122
   Globalization and democracy in developing countries 124
   Epilogue 132

Conclusion: economics for human rights 134

Bibliography 148
Index 163