Contents

Foreword xvii
Acknowledgments xxi
About the Authors xxiii

Chapter 1 Introducing IBM’s Mentoring Portfolio 1
Mentoring Transformations 4
IBM’s Challenge 5
IBM’s Response 9
Creating a Mentoring Portfolio 13
Contributions of Intelligent Mentoring 16
References 19

Chapter 2 Organizational Intelligence: Using Just-in-Time Mentoring Solutions 23
Overview: Revitalizing Mentoring 24
Creating a Mentoring Hybrid 26
IBM Revitalizes Mentoring 27
Linking Mentoring to Organizational Intelligence 30
Attracting and Recruiting Talent 31
Socializing of Employees 33
Accessing Knowledge and Expertise 34
Supporting Knowledge Retention 36

xiii
Sustaining a Knowledge-Resilient Culture 38
Developing a Portfolio of Experiential Learning Opportunities 40
Experiential Learning Opportunities in the Future 43
References 47

Chapter 3 Organizational Intelligence: Fostering Communities of Knowledge 51
Overview 52
Learning through Communities of Practice 53
Building Communities of Practice at IBM 55
A Mentoring Solution 57
Mentoring as Communities of Practice 58
Lessons Learned from IBM's Mentoring Communities 63
Mentoring Across Boundaries 64
Strengthening Relational Competencies 66
Fostering Meaningful Collaboration 68
Mentoring Communities and the Future 69
Valuing Community 70
"THINK"ing at IBM 70
Who Said an Elephant Can't Learn to Dance? 71
References 72

Chapter 4 Connecting People: Creating Meaningful Engagement 75
Moving from Isolation to Engagement 76
The Benefits of Engaged Employees 76
Challenges for Engaging a Globally Dispersed Workforce 78
Mentoring, Technology, and Connecting People 80
Creating Access to People 81
Creating Access to Information 82
Creating Access to Virtual Communities 84
Example of an IBM Best Practice: Group Speed Mentoring 86
Engaging Employees through Mentoring—Lessons Learned

Technology as a Tool, Not a Panacea 91
Holding Managers Accountable 91
Some Final Engaging Thoughts 92

References 93

Chapter 5 Connecting People: Mentoring as a Tool for Diversity and Inclusion

The Importance of Connecting Among Difference 98
The Workforce of the Future Is Here 99
Diversity as a Business Imperative 101
Enhancing Diversity: Why Mentoring Matters 103
Connecting within Diversity at IBM 105
Mentoring Based on Affinities 109
Group Mentoring via Diversity Networks 110
Asian Diversity Network Group at IBM 112
Looking Toward the Future 116

References 121

Chapter 6 Connecting People: Using Mentoring to Signal Value in People

The Power of Value in People 126
What Employees Expect—A Relational View 128
Employees’ Perceptions of Organizational Support 131
How Organizational Leaders Can “Signal Support” 133
Using Reverse Mentoring to Signal Support 136
Respect for the Individual 138
Support for Employee Development 139
Collaboration across Difference 140
Preventing Career Derailment: A Plan for Success 141

Reverse Mentoring: Signaling Value in People across IBM 144
Reverse Mentoring in the United States 145
Reverse Mentoring in Finland 146
Reverse Mentoring in Latin America 148
Looking Toward the Future—Multigenerational Collaboration 151
Lessons Learned—Signaling Ethics and Integrity 153
References 155

Chapter 7 Business Impact: Using Mentoring to Deliver Value for Competitive Advantage 159
Adding Value through Mentoring 160
Mentoring Solutions as High-Performance Work Practices (HPWP) 161
Enduring Skills Help to Create Competitive Advantage 165
Developing a Balanced View of “Value Added” 167
Dangle the Carrot—IBM’s Marketing Group Mentoring Award 172
Lessons Learned—Adding Value and Sustaining Business Impact 176
References 177

Chapter 8 Business Impact: Using Mentoring Solutions to Solve “Wicked Problems” 181
Mentoring as a Strategic Solution 182
Using Mentoring to Solve “Wicked Problems” 184
Global Talent Management as a “Wicked Problem” 187
Mentoring: On the Manufacturing Floor to the Technical Labs 191
Black Technical Leaders Forum (BTLF) 193
Building a Global Knowledge Community—South Africa’s Cross-Geography Mentoring Initiative 197
Lessons Learned—Sustaining Business Impact via Strategic Mentoring Solutions 203
Some Final Thoughts—The Impact of Intelligent Mentoring 205
References 207

Index 209