

THE LUXURY
STRATEGY

BREAK THE RULES OF MARKETING
TO BUILD LUXURY BRANDS

J.N. KAPFERER AND V. BASTIEN

London and Philadelphia

Contents

About the authors	xi
Introduction: To be or not to be luxury	1
PART 1: Back to luxury fundamentals	3
1. In the beginning there was luxury	5
A brief history of luxury	6
The 20th century and the democratization of luxury	10
Luxury, the individual and society	18
Positioning of luxury in our present-day society	24
Money, fashion, art and luxury: boundaries and ambiguities	26
2. The end of a confusion: premium is not luxury	38
The multiple approaches to the concept of luxury	39
Denying the specificity of luxury?	40
There is no continuous movement from premium to luxury	41
It is not easy to exit luxury through a 'downwards' strategy	42
From where has the current confusion arisen?	43
Exiting the confusion: the case of the car	45
Relativity of luxury in cars	46
Is automobile luxury the pursuit of perfection?	47
Top-of-the-range, upper-premium and luxury cars	47
The luxury car: creation, mythical models and social prestige	50

What link does luxury have with technology?	53
The constituents of the myth of the luxury car	55
Luxury and expressions of national identity	56
Beyond the product: services and privileges	59
The cult objects: licences and boutiques	60
3. Anti-laws of marketing	61
1. Forget about 'positioning', luxury is not comparative	62
2. Does your product have enough flaws?	63
3. Don't pander to your customers' wishes	64
4. Keep non-enthusiasts out	65
5. Don't respond to rising demand	66
6. Dominate the client	66
7. Make it difficult for clients to buy	67
8. Protect clients from non-clients, the big from the small	67
9. The role of advertising is not to sell	68
10. Communicate to those whom you are not targeting	69
11. The presumed price should always seem higher than the actual price	70
12. Luxury sets the price, price does not set luxury	70
13. Raise your prices as time goes on in order to increase demand	71
14. Keep raising the average price of the product range	72
15. Do not sell	73
16. Keep stars out of your advertising	73
17. Cultivate closeness to the arts for initiates	74
18. Don't relocate your factories	75
4. Facets of luxury today	76
On the importance of the 'label'	77
Luxury: the product and the brand	79
The ingredients of the luxury product: complexity and work	80
Superlative, never comparative	82
Luxury and cultural mediation	83
Luxury and history	84
Luxury and time	87
Tradition is not passéisme	89
Luxury is made by hand	90
Real or virtual rarity?	91
Luxury and exclusivity	95
Luxury and fashion: an essential difference	98
Luxury and art	98
Luxury and charity	100

PART 2: Luxury brands need specific management	101
5. Customer attitudes vis-à-vis luxury	103
What is the size of the market?	103
To be rich or to be modern?	104
Heavy users and day trippers (also called excursionists)	106
The four luxury clienteles	107
A strong axis of segmentation: relationship with the product or with the logo?	108
A second axis of segmentation: authentic does not always mean historical	109
A third axis of segmentation: individualization or integration?	110
Luxury by country	110
6. Developing brand equity	116
There is no luxury without brands	116
A luxury brand is a real and living person	118
A luxury brand has roots	118
The luxury brand must radiate	118
No life cycle for the luxury brand	119
A legitimacy created from authority, class and creation, more than from expertise	120
The financial value of luxury brands	120
The core of the luxury brand: its identity	121
Building coherence: central and peripheral identity traits	126
Two modes of luxury brand building	127
Building and preserving the dream	127
Product roles and luxury brand architecture	130
Managing the dream through communication	133
Defending the brand against counterfeiting	133
Counterfeiting as a way to diagnose the health of the strategy of the brand	135
Always defend your rights and communicate frequently	136
7. Luxury brand stretching	137
The origins of stretching	138
Luxury stretching: a practice that has changed the sector	139
Two models for extension: vertical or horizontal?	140
The pyramid	141
The galaxy	142
Typology of brand stretchings	144
Leading a brand stretch	146
An example of stretching: Mont Blanc	147

Stretching: brand coherence, but also the creative and unexpected	149
Should extensions have a name?	152
The risk factors of brand stretching	153
Controlling the boomerang effect of extension	156
8. Qualifying a product as luxury	158
No product without service	158
The luxury product and the dream	159
Functionality and dreams do not follow the same economic models	161
The luxury product is not a perfect product, but an affecting product	162
Luxury product and competitive universe	163
Luxury product and time	164
Occasion of use and perception of value	164
Lasting a lifetime... and beyond	164
Prolonging the ecstasy of a privileged moment	165
Adapting to its time	166
Structuring the luxury range: how is the range of a luxury brand organized?	167
Innovating through a new product range	169
Don't sacrifice the past to the future	172
A mode of production as a lever of the imaginary	173
The opposition between luxury and relocation	175
Licences signal the departure from luxury	176
9. Pricing luxury	177
What about price elasticity?	178
Increase the price to increase demand and recreate the distance	180
What price premium?	183
Fixing the price in luxury	184
Managing the price over time	185
No sales in luxury	189
Price reductions?	189
The price and its communication	190
The price is not publicly advertised	191
The price must be sold	191
10. Distribution and the internet dilemma	193
Luxury is in the distribution	193
You sell to someone before you sell something	194
It is the price, not the product, that is sold to the client	195
The sales personnel should never earn direct sales commission	196

Distribution shows that the brand dominates the client... but respects them	196
Distributing is first of all about communicating	198
Distribution should not only show off, but enhance the product image	199
It is distribution's job to communicate the brand's price level	199
A luxury purchase is a lengthy act	200
Distribution is luxury's weak link	201
The choice of a new sales point is not delegable	202
Distribution must manage rarity	203
Distribution protects you from competition	203
Luxury and mode of distribution	204
Luxury and internet distribution (the internet dilemma)	207
11. Communicating luxury	210
You don't talk about money	211
You communicate because you sell	212
You communicate, you don't advertise	212
No personalities in the advertising	215
The role of 'brand ambassadors'	216
Tightening the social driver of desire	217
Permanently encourage word of mouth	219
What balance should there be between local and global communication?	219
The internet and communication in luxury	220
The codes of luxury communication	220
Making the brand's visual language denser: the nine signatures of the brand	220
Making the brand denser through tales, stories and rumours	221
Adapting the communication register to the type of luxury	222
The dialectic of the local and the universal	223
12. Financial and HR management of a luxury company	225
Financial specificities of luxury companies	225
Luxury and profitability	227
Globalizing	229
Luxury, volume and profitability	229
Managing the human capital in luxury	233
PART 3: Strategic perspectives	239
13. Luxury business models	241
Luxury products with a profitable core trade	242

What are the pitfalls to avoid in this working model of a luxury product with a profitable core trade?	247
Luxury products with a too-restricted core range	249
The perfume business model	256
The business models of luxury trades with very high overheads	260
The 'high-tech' business model (highly innovative industry)	263
14. Entering luxury and leaving it	265
Wanting to be luxury is not enough: the conditions of luxury	266
Why envisage a luxury strategy?	267
Start small and become profitable	269
Once profitable, grow quickly	269
Acquiring an existing brand	272
Departing from luxury	273
The end of a luxury brand	273
Taking a brand out of the luxury universe	278
15. Learning from luxury	282
Luxury concerns all trades	282
Understand the rules in order to adapt them	283
How Apple follows a luxury strategy	284
Luxury according to Mini	286
Mixed strategies	288
Managing a luxury strategy in 'B to B'? Think 'B to B to C'	290
Luxury marketing as the future of classic marketing?	293
What marketing issues of today could luxury marketing help to resolve?	294
The Lacoste example	294
16. Conclusion: Luxury and sustainable development	297
Luxury and ethics	298
Luxury and sustainable development	298
Bibliography	300
Index	305