Acknowledgements

Introduction  Shadow Economies Around the World: Some Preliminary Facts and
First Policy Conclusions  Friedrich Schneider

PART I  SURVEYS AND CONCEPTUAL ISSUES

A  Surveys

Economy: State and Prospects for Measurement’, Review of Income and Wealth, 30 (1), March, 1–23  5
Activity: A Survey Concentrating on Recent US Research’, in Sergio Alessandrini and Bruno Dallago (eds), The Unofficial Economy: Consequences and Perspectives in Different Economic Systems, Aldershot, UK: Gower, 61–81  28
Economies: Size, Causes, and Consequences’, Journal of Economic Literature, XXXVIII (1), March, 77–114  49
4. Klarita Gerxhani (2004), ‘The Informal Sector in Developed and Less Developed Countries: A Literature Survey’, Public Choice, 120 (3/4), 267–300  87

B  Conceptual Issues

5. Phillip Cagan (1958), ‘The Demand for Currency Relative to the Economy’, in Kristen R. Monroe (ed.), The Political Process and Economic Change, Chapter 2, New York, NY: Agathon Press, 17–42  149
Economy” and the Full Compliance Deficit’, in Wulf Gaertner and Alois Wenig (eds), The Economics of the Shadow Economy, Berlin/
Heidelberg: Springer-Verlag, 19–36  175
8. David E.A. Giles (1999), ‘Measuring the Hidden Economy:
Implications for Econometric Modelling’, Economic Journal, 109
(456), June, F370–F380  193
PART II THEORETICAL APPROACHES

A Micro-Approaches

B Macro-Approaches

PART III POLICY IMPLICATIONS

Name Index