A Note on Method in Economics, Kurt Klappholz xvii

Fallacy 1: U.S. Goods Cannot Compete Effectively with Those Produced by Cheap Labor in Countries Such as China 1

Fallacy 2: Immigrant Labor Confers Economic Benefits on the Host Country 7

Fallacy 3: Globalization Acts to Raise Living Standards in the West 17

Fallacy 4: Countries Forming a Common Market Reap Economic Benefits 23

Fallacy 5: Rent Controls Are Necessary during a Housing Shortage 29

Fallacy 7: A Reduction in Building Costs Will Reduce House Prices 45

Fallacy 8: Jobs Are Lost When a Factory or Business Closes Down, and Vice Versa 51

Fallacy 9: A Competitive Private Enterprise Economy Tends to Produce Economic Efficiency 57

Fallacy 10: A Subsidy to University Education Is Justified Since It Promotes Equality of Opportunity and Confers Benefits on Society as a Whole 67

Fallacy 11: The National Debt Is a Burden on Future Generations 75
Fallacy 12: Inflation Is Caused by an Excessive Increase in the Supply of Money 81

Fallacy 13: The Rate of Economic Growth Over Time Is a Good Index of the Growth of People's Satisfaction 89
