A Dream Deferred

New Studies in Russian and Soviet Labour History

edited by
Donald Filtzer
Wendy Z. Goldman
Gijs Kessler
Simon Pirani

PETER LANG
Bern • Berlin • Bruxelles • Frankfurt am Main • New York • Oxford • Wien
Contents

Acknowledgements 9

1. Introduction 11

Part I: Workers and Workers' Politics, 1880–1941

2. Non-Party Workers' Organizations in St Petersburg and the Provinces before and during the First Russian Revolution 29
   Nikolai V. Mikhailov

3. The 1906 Moscow Garment Workers' Strike 47
   Christine Ruane

4. Politics, Parties, and Power: Sormovo Workers in 1917 69
   Sarah Badcock

5. Mass Mobilization versus Participatory Democracy: Moscow Workers and the Bolshevik Expropriation of Political Power 95
   Simon Pirani

6. Transforming Factions into Blocs: Alexander Shliapnikov, Sergei Medvedev, and the ccc Investigation of the “Baku Affair” in 1926 129
   Barbara Allen

   Aleksei Gusev
8. Strikes during the Early Soviet Period, 1922 to 1932: From Working-Class Militancy to Working-Class Passivity?
Kevin Murphy
171

9. Terror in the Factories
Wendy Z. Goldman
193

Part II: Workers and Work: Coercion and Incentives

10. Taiga Conditions: Kulak Special Settlers, Commandants, and Soviet Industry
Lynne Viola
221

11. Foremen in the Field: Collective Farm Chairmen and the Fate of Labour Discipline after Collectivization, 1932-1953
Jean Lévesque
243

12. Soviet Worker Leisure Travel in the 1930s
Diane P. Koenker
265

Part III: Family, Food, and Work: Strategies for Survival, 1884 to the Present

13. “Earning My Own Crust of Bread”: Labor in the Lives of Discontented Wives in Late Imperial Russia
Barbara Alpern Engel
293

Gijs Kessler
315

15. The 1947 Food Crisis and its Aftermath: Worker and Peasant Consumption in Non-Famine Regions of the RSFSR
Donald Filtzer
343