Migration and Irregular Work in Austria

A Case Study of the Structure and Dynamics of Irregular Foreign Employment in Europe at the Beginning of the 21st Century

Michael Jandl, Christina Hollomey, Sandra Gendera, Anna Stepien and Veronika Bilger

IMISCOE Reports

Amsterdam University Press
Table of contents

Acknowledgements

1. Theoretical background
   1.1 Introduction and background .............................................. 9
   1.2 Research topic and definitions ......................................... 11
   1.3 Methodology .................................................................. 13
   1.4 Preliminary hypotheses and research questions .................. 17
   1.5 Theories on migration and the labour market .................... 19
   1.6 Theories on irregular labour migration .............................. 26
   1.7 Research on migration and irregular work in Europe ............ 33
   1.8 Existing research and data on illegal foreign employment in Austria .................................................. 44
   1.9 The regulation of migration and foreign employment in Austria .................................................. 51
   1.10 Control of irregular migrant work at the workplace .......... 56

2. The Delphi study
   2.1 Introduction ................................................................ 65
   2.2 Methodology ................................................................ 65
   2.3 A short definition .......................................................... 68
   2.4 Forms of irregular migrant work ....................................... 69
   2.5 An assessment of the impact of irregular migrant work ...... 74
   2.6 Reasons and motives for employers to employ migrants irregularly .................................................. 78
   2.7 Recruitment and social networks ........................................ 81
   2.8 Social characteristics of irregularly working migrants in Austria .................................................. 83
   2.9 Quantitative developments ................................................ 86
   2.10 Controls in the workplace ................................................ 93
   2.11 Political measures against irregular migrant work .......... 95
   2.12 Prognoses and scenarios on the future development of irregular migrant work .............................................. 101
   2.13 Concluding remarks ......................................................... 106
3 Empirical results from migrant interviews

3.1 Methodology and sample description

3.2 Legal framework regarding access to employment of non-nationals

3.3 Actors involved in irregular employment networks

3.4 Motives to migrate and work abroad

Working life in specific sectors of irregular work

3.5 The construction sector

3.6 Catering and tourism

3.7 Agriculture

3.8 Domestic services

3.9 Sector-specific conclusions

3.10 Career planning in irregular versus regular work

3.11 EU enlargement and its impact on irregular employment of migrants

4 Conclusions

4.1 Integrating research approaches and results

4.2 Concluding remarks

Annex

References