Real Estate and the Financial Crisis

How Turmoil in the Capital Markets Is Restructuring Real Estate Finance

Anthony Downs
Contents

An Overview of the Financial Crisis 2

Fundamental Factors Underlying the Financial Crisis 2
A Flood of Capital and Rising Real Estate Prices: 2000 through 2002 7
Rapid Credit Expansion and Increasing Risk: 2003 through 2005 15
Housing Slowdown and Growing Loan Defaults: 2006 to Mid-2007 23
Credit Crunch and Financial Crisis: Mid-2007 to 2009 26
Continuing Turmoil 30

The Financial Crisis and Housing Markets 32

Why So Much Money Went into Housing Markets after 2000 32
The Cyclical Nature of U.S. Housing Production 34
Why What Happens in Housing Markets Greatly Affects the Entire Economy 37
The Housing and Credit Boom from 2000 through 2006 38
The Subprime Mortgage Phenomenon 41
How Subprime Mortgage Problems Caused the Real Estate Credit World to Freeze Up 45
Three Indices for Measuring Home Price Changes 48
An Error Committed by All Three Major Home Price Indices 50
What Has Happened to Home Prices? 53
Regional and Metropolitan-Area Variations in Home Prices and Their Rates of Change 56
What Has Happened to the Stock Prices of U.S. Homebuilders? 59
Some Broader Impacts of Changes in the Organization of Housing Mortgage Markets 60
Conclusion 61

Subprime Lending and Housing Foreclosures 62

How Many Subprime Mortgages Are There? 62
Where Subprime Mortgage Loans Are Concentrated 63
The Nature of Foreclosures 64
How Foreclosures May Affect State and Local Governments 71
Other Adverse Impacts of Concentrated Foreclosures 72
Some Ameliorating Factors 75
Traumatic Period 75

The Financial Crisis and Commercial Property Markets 76

Supply and Demand in Commercial Property Space Markets, 1989-2000 76
Effects of the Flood of Capital into Commercial Property Markets after 2000 77
Increasing Use of Financial Derivatives in Commercial Property Markets 82
Contagious Spread of Credit Uncertainty from Housing Markets 84
The Revised Viewpoints of Capital Suppliers on Commercial Property Markets 86
Property Owners' and Borrowers' Responses to Capital Suppliers' New Requirements 88
REIT Share Prices and Private Commercial Property Prices 88
The Decline in CMBS Activities and the Shortage of Lendable Funds in Commercial Property Markets 92
The Dearth of Public Policy Responses to Credit Problems in the Commercial Property Market 94
Unexpected Declines in Private Lenders' Willingness to Make Loans on Commercial Properties 95
In This Financial Standoff, Who Is Going to Blink First? 97