

The Apprentice's Sorcerer

Liberal Tradition and Fascism

By

Ishay Landa

BRILL

LEIDEN • BOSTON
2010

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction
What Do Words Matter? Preliminary Reflections on Fascism, Socialism, Liberalism and Semantics	1
Chapter One
The Liberal Split: Divorcing the Economic from the Political	21
Liberalism and Democracy in the Longue Durée	21
Putting Property under Locke and Key	22
From Constant to Donoso Cortés	30
Pareto: on Foxes and Musso-Lions	44
Engels and Gumplowicz Outlining the Overthrow from Above	54
Chapter Two
Liberal Economics, Fascist Politics: “A Wonderful Wedlock”	59
Spengler: The “Will to Property”	60
Hitler and Liberalism: a “Wonderful Harmony” of Politics and Economics	75
Spengler and Hitler: the Bookworm Mistakes His Place	98
After Fascism: J. S. Schapiro and the Illusive Death of the Dismal Science	108
Chapter Three
Anti-Liberal Liberals—I (Moeller van den Bruck, Proudhon, Carlyle)	115
The Bourgeois Spirit of the Germanic Ideology	115
Moeller van den Bruck: A Socialist Champion of Capitalism	119
The Fascist Failure to Emulate the West	136
Outsiders-Insiders: Proudhon and Carlyle	140
Proudhon: An Anarchist of the Market	141
Carlyle’s Critique of Capitalism: from the Cash Nexus to the Lash Nexus	153

Chapter Four

Anti-Liberal Liberals—II (Schmitt, Sorel)	165
Carl Schmitt: A Democratic Anti-Liberal?	165
Schmitt's Adaptation of Classical Liberalism	166
The Hyper-Politics of Weimar	172
From Donoso to Schmitt: the Introduction of Demagoguery	175
Fascism: Cui Bono?	179
Repelling the Democratic Pickpocket	184
The Strange Case of Georges Sorel	187
The Crisis of Socialism?	188
Painting the Roses Red: Sorel's Post-Liberalism	193
Sorel's Campaign against the Bourgeoisie... and the Polynesian Savages	206
Strikers or Strikebreakers?	215

Chapter Five

Liberalism and Fascism between Myths and Reality—I	221
Liberal Myth No. 1: Fascism as Tyranny of the Majority	221
Tocqueville's Predictions: A Self-Fulfilling Prophecy?	222
From Malthus to Mises: Dictatorship as a Necessary Evil	234
Croce: the Paradoxes of the Fascist Diet	239
Liberal Myth No. 2: Collectivist Liberalism, Individualist Fascism?	247
Liberal Individualism against Mass Democracy	259
Protecting the Individuality... of the Nation	265
The Führerprinzip or Self-Glorification?	268

Chapter Six

Liberalism and Fascism between Myths and Reality—II	273
Liberal Myth No. 3: The Origins of the Fascist "Big Lie": Totalitarian or Liberal?	273
King Demos and his Enemies	274
Esotericism, Old and New	277
The Bid for Apparent Democracy	288
Liberal Myth No. 4: Fascism as a Nationalistic Attack on Liberal Cosmopolitanism	291
Liberalism, Nationalism, Imperialism	291
"A Farm is a Fatherland in Miniature"	297

CONTENTS

ix

Fascism: Patriotism as the Last Refuge of the Liberal	301
A Return to "Grand Politics"	308
Nationalism and its Vicissitudes	314
Germany Above All?	317
Epilogue
Sub-Man, Underman, Untermensch :
Fascism as an International Co-production	321
The Liberal Northwest: Immune to Fascism?	322
British Interwar Fascism beyond Mosley	328
Crypto-Fascism	331
An International Co-production	339
References	349
Index	359