INSTITUTIONAL CHANGE AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF INDUSTRIAL CLUSTERS IN CHINA

CASE STUDIES FROM THE TEXTILE AND CLOTHING INDUSTRY

Jinmin Wang
Nottingham Trent University, UK
CONTENTS

Preface ix
Acknowledgment xiii
About the Author xv
List of Tables xvii
List of Figures xxi

1 Introduction 1
  1.1. The Development of Private Economy in China's Post-Reform 1
  1.2. The Emergence of Industrial Clusters in China 3
  1.3. Institutional Change and the Development of Industrial Clusters 6
  1.4. State, Institutional Change and Economic Development 9
  1.5. Plan of the Book 12

2 Institutions, Industrial Clusters and Regional Development 15
  2.1. Introduction 15
  2.2. Concepts and Types of Industrial Clusters 15
  2.3. Competitive Advantage and Industrial Clusters 23
  2.4. Institutional Change and the Development of Industrial Clusters 30
  2.5. Conclusion 34

3 Global Institutional Change and the Development of Textile and Clothing Clusters in China 35
  3.1. Introduction 35
  3.2. The Development of the Textile and Clothing Industry in China 37
3.3. The Evolution of Global Textile and Clothing Trade Regime 45
3.4. The Impacts of Global Institutional Change on the Textile and Clothing Clusters in China 46
  3.4.1. Making the extension of vertical value chain 50
  3.4.2. Coordinated cluster development with local commodity trading markets 51
  3.4.3. Making spatial expansion home and abroad 51
    3.4.3.1. The overcapacity within the domestic market 53
    3.4.3.2. The increasing international trade frictions on Chinese textile and clothing exports 53
    3.4.3.3. The adjustment of domestic industrial policy and tax policy 54
    3.4.3.4. “Go Global” strategy by the Chinese government 55
3.5. Conclusion 57

4 Institutional Change and the Development of Industrial Clusters in Zhejiang Province 61
  4.1. Introduction 61
  4.2. The Development of Industrial Clusters in Zhejiang Province 63
    4.2.1. Widespread SME industrial clusters in rural area 64
    4.2.2. The interaction between SMEs and commodity trading market 67
    4.2.3. The rapid growth of economic development zones 69
    4.2.4. The spatial expansion of industrial clusters home and abroad 71
  4.3. Informal Institutions and the Development of Industrial Cluster in Zhejiang Province 72
  4.4. Institutional Innovation of the Local Government 80
    4.4.1. Encouraging entrepreneurship and promoting the development of private economy 80
    4.4.2. Building the commodity trading market 83
4.4.3. The implementation of "go out" strategy at the local level 84
4.5. Conclusion 85

5 The Ningbo Clothing Cluster 87
5.1. Introduction 87
5.2. The Formation and Development of Ningbo Clothing Cluster 88
5.3. Informal Institutions and Cluster Development 89
5.4. Formal Institutions and Cluster Development 96
5.5. The Internationalization of Ningbo Clothing Cluster 98
5.6. Conclusion 109

6 Shaoxing Textile Cluster 111
6.1. Introduction 111
6.2. The Informal Institutional Change and the Development of Shaoxing Textile Cluster 112
6.3. The Formal Institutional Change and the Development of Shaoxing Textile Cluster 113
6.3.1. The development of Terephthalic Acid (PTA) industry in China 113
6.3.2. The entry of private textile firms in the PTA industry 115
6.3.3. The second phase of the PTA program of Hualian Sunsijne Petro-Chemical Co., Ltd. 117
6.3.4. The impacts of global financial crisis on the PTA industry in Shaoxing Textile Cluster 119
6.4 Ownership Change of China Textile City and the Development of Shaoxing Textile Cluster 120
6.4.1. The privatization of China Textile City during 2002–2006 121
6.4.2. The re-emergence of the local government 127
6.5. Conclusion 128

7 Yiwu Socks Cluster 131
7.1. Introduction 131
7.2. Informal Institutions and the Development of Yiwu Socks Cluster 132

7.3. The Local Government, Commodity Trading Market and the Development of Yiwu Socks Cluster 136
  7.3.1. Improve the allocation of market resources with effective use of administrative means 137
  7.3.2. Strengthen the specialization of commodity trading market at different locations and agglomerate the same type of commodities within the same district of the market 139
  7.3.3. Promote the industrial development and the formation of SME industrial clusters 140
  7.3.4. Forge local–global linkage of industrial clusters through internationalizing the commodity trading market 141

7.4. Yiwu Model and its Implications for Regional Development in China and South–South Cooperation 144

7.5. Conclusions 146

8 Conclusions 149
  8.1. The Unique Institutional Factors Leading to the Rapid Development of Textile and Clothing Clusters in Rural China 149
    8.1.1. Hybrid ownership 149
    8.1.2. Institutional entrepreneurship 150
    8.1.3. The commodity trading market 151
  8.2. Institutional Change Through Co-Evolution Between the Public and Private Sectors in Economic Transition under the Deepening Globalization 154

Bibliography 159

Index 179