

Asian Economic and Financial Integration in Global Framework

Pradeep S. Chauhan

Fellow, South Asian Study Centre,
St. Antony's College,
University of Oxford, UK.

New Century Publications
New Delhi, India

Contents

About the Book	xiii
Author's Profile	xiv
Preface	xv-xviii
Abbreviations and Acronyms	xix-xxi
List of Tables in the Text	xxii
1. REGIONAL ECONOMIC INTEGRATION AND ASIA	1-47
1.1 Introduction
1.1.1 Trade Creation and Diversion of Economic Integration
1.2 Regional Economic Integration and Regionalism
1.3 Conceptual Definitions
1.3.1 Economic Integration and Balassa's Stages Approach
1.4 Meaning of RTA sans FTAs
1.5 Do Regional Trade Arrangements Help or Hinder Multilateral Liberalisation?
1.5.1 Bhagwati School and Regionalism
1.5.2 Regionalism's Dark History
1.5.3 Fascism, Autarky and Regionalism
1.5.4 Non-fascist Trade Blocs
1.5.5 Building Blocs: Logic and Hopes
1.5.6 Prima Facie Rejection of Fears
1.5.7 Multilateralism as a Response to Regionalism
1.5.8 Domino Theory of Regionalism
1.5.9 Mercantilist View of Trade Negotiations
1.5.10 Law of the Jungle, MFN Rules and FTAS
1.5.11 Political Economy of Hub and Spoke Bilateralism
1.5.12 Domino Effect Applied to Hub and Spoke Bilateralism
1.5.13 Explaining the GATT/WTO's Success

- 1.5.14 Juggernaut Theory of Multilateral Liberalization
- 1.5.15 Economic Source of Political Economy Momentum
- 1.5.16 Exceptions that Prove the Rule
- 1.5.17 Multilateralism and Regionalism as Complements
- 1.5.18 Likely Evolution of East Asian Regionalism
- 1.5.19 East Asian Bicycle: Two Hubs, Many Spokes
- 1.6 Regionalism versus Multilateralism: Debate in the Asian Context
 - 1.6.1 Economic Impact of RTAs
 - 1.6.2 WTO Constraints on RTAs
 - 1.6.3 The Systemic Problems
 - 1.6.4 Making Regionalism Complementary to Multilateralism

2. PROSPECTS AND CHALLENGES OF ASIAN ECONOMIC INTEGRATION: LESSONS FROM EUROPEAN UNION

48-83

- 2.1 Introduction
- 2.2 European Integration and Institutions with Asia
 - 2.2.1 EU: Apolitical Ideological Phenomenon
 - 2.2.2 Framework of European Institutions
 - 2.2.3 Success and Failure Go Together
 - 2.2.4 Balance of Power in EU and Asia
 - 2.2.5 Decision-taking in the EU
 - 2.2.6 Progress of Economic Integration in Asia
 - 2.2.7 Messages for Asian Economic Integration
- 2.3 Economic Integration through Trade and Production Networks
 - 2.3.1 Basic Economic Principles of European Integration
 - 2.3.2 EU and the Growth of Trade

- 2.3.4 Trade Creation and Trade Diversion
- 2.3.5 Industrial Reorganization, Competition, Scale, and Market Integration
- 2.3.6 Rapid Expansion of Foreign Direct Investment
- 2.3.7 Case for Convergence
- 2.3.8 Role of EU Policy
- 2.3.9 Scenario in Asia Countries
- 2.4 Basis of Integration
 - 2.4.1 Successful Integration of Europe
 - 2.4.2 Challenges in Asia
- 2.5 Conclusions

3. TOWARDS ASIAN MONETARY AND FINANCIAL INTEGRATION

84-119

- 3.1 Introduction
- 3.2 Increasing Globalization of Production and Financial Integration in Asia
 - 3.2.1 Growth and Integration in Asian Trade
 - 3.2.2 Trade Integration Driven by Cross-border Production Networks
 - 3.2.3 China's Role in Trade Integration
 - 3.2.4 Financial Integration in Asia
 - 3.2.5 Linkages between Trade and Financial Integration
 - 3.2.6 Vulnerabilities Associated with Financial Integration
- 3.3 Role of Institutions in Fostering Financial Integration
 - 3.3.1 Financial Liberalisation and Reforms
 - 3.3.2 Asian Energy Dialogue
 - 3.3.3 Need for Official Coordination and Cooperation
 - 3.3.4 Some Progress in Financial Integration
 - 3.3.5 Agenda for Institutional Reforms
- 3.4 Monetary Policy and Exchange Rate

Framework

3.4.1 Post-crisis Exchange Rate Regimes

3.4.2 Return of the Middle Way

3.4.3 A Regional Currency Arrangement

3.5 The Parallel Currency Approach

3.5.1 Mechanics

3.5.2 Pegs and Dollars

3.6 Relevance of Europe's Experience for Asian Integration

3.7 Summing Up

4. MARKET-DRIVEN REGIONAL INTEGRATION IN ASIA

120-153

4.1 Introduction

4.2 Motivations for Regional Integration

4.2.1 Policy-driven Regional Integration

4.3 Europe's Regional Institutions

4.4 Asia's Regional Institutions

4.5 Regional Agreements

4.6 Market-driven Regional Integration in Asia

4.6.1 East Asian Trade and Foreign Direct Investment

4.6.2 Trading Patterns

4.6.3 Intra-regional Trade

4.6.4 Patterns of FDI Flows

4.6.5 Intra-regional FDI

4.6.6 Trade and FDI in East Asia

4.6.7 Cross-border Production Networks and Regional Integration in East Asia

4.6.8 Trade in Parts and Components

4.6.9 Intra-regional Trade in Parts and Components

4.7 Japan and China in East Asian Production Networks

4.8 East Asia's Role in Assembly Trade

4.9 Concluding Remarks

5. ASIAN ECONOMIC INTEGRATION AND INSTITUTION BUILDING	154-182
5.1 Introduction
5.2 Open Regionalism versus AFTA
5.2.1 Open Regionalism
5.2.2 ASEAN Free Trade Area
5.2.3 From an ASEAN FTA to an ASEAN Community
5.2.4. Enlargement of the ASEAN FTA
5.3 Market Integration
5.4 Institutions: Concepts and Approaches
5.4.1 Regional Economic Integration and Institutions
5.4.2 Subsequent Approaches
5.4.3 Comparison of Regions
5.4.4 Generalized Ability of the EU Model
5.4.5 Political Integration
5.4.6 Diseconomies of Institutional Deepening
5.4.7 Multilateral Context
5.5 Conclusions and Implications
6. ROLE OF INDIA AND CHINA IN PAN ECONOMIC INTEGRATION IN ASIA	183-224
6.1 Introduction
6.1.1 Regional Economic Integration in Asia
6.1.2 Economic Role of China and India in Asian Economic Integration
6.2 RTAs Participated by China and India
6.2.1 China's Regional Trade Initiatives
6.2.2 India's Regional Trade Initiatives
6.3 Asian Economic Integration: China and India
6.3.1 Different Types of Regionalism
6.3.2 Hub-and-Spokes Bilateralism
6.3.3 Asian Free Trade or Asian Economic Community

6.3.4 An East Asia Bloc and a South Asian Bloc
Linked with Bilateral FTAs

6.3.5 Concluding Analysis

6.4. Policy Recommendations

6.4.1 Routes for Asian Economic Integration

6.4.2 Establishing a China-India FTA

6.4.3 China and India Should Lead Asia

6.4.4 China and India Should Conduct Deeper
Integration

6.4.5 Asian Countries Should Develop Common
Guidelines for Bilateral FTAs

6.5 Conclusion

7. NAFTA: ECONOMIC INTEGRATION IN NORTH AMERICA

225-254

7.1 Introduction

7.2 Innovations in US Trade

7.3 NAFTA as the Next Step

7.3.1 Negotiated NAFTA: Liberalization and Protectionism

7.4 Trade-related Effects on the United States

7.4.1 Sectoral Effects

7.4.2 Services

7.4.3 Intellectual Property Rights Protection

7.4.4 Migration

7.5 Beyond NAFTA

7.5.1 Environmental Concerns

7.5.2 Workplace Conditions

7.5.3 Adjustment Assistance and Retraining

7.6 Whither NAFTA?

8. AFRICAN ECONOMIC AND MONETARY
INTEGRATION

255-310

8.1 Introduction

8.2 Africa's Experience with Monetary Cooperation

8.2.1 Monetary Cooperation after Independence
8.2.2 Challenges of Monetary Policies in Post-Independence Africa
8.2.3 Challenges of the CFA Zone
8.2.4 Recovery of the CFA Zone
8.3 Monetary Cooperation Arrangements of the Regional Economic Communities
8.3.1 Monetary Arrangements of Southern African: Development Community (SADC)
8.3.2 Monetary Arrangements of Common Market for Eastern and Southern Africa (COMESA)
8.3.3 Interest Rate Policy
8.3.4 Monetary Arrangements of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS)
8.3.5 Monetary Arrangements of East African Community (EAC)
8.3.6 Monetary Arrangements of the Economic and Monetary Union of Central Africa (CEMAC)
8.3.7 Monetary Arrangements of West African Economic and Monetary Union (UEMOA)
8.3.8 Progress Report on the West African Monetary Zone
8.3.9 Monetary arrangements of Arab Maghreb Union (UMA)
8.4 Comparative Analysis
8.5 Conclusion
9. MERCOSUR: MERCADO COMMUN DE SUR (THE SOUTHERN CONE COMMON MARKET): ECONOMIC INTEGRATION IN LATIN AMERICA	311-348
9.1 Introduction
9.2 Mercosur: Overview of Progress
9.2.1 Mercosur's Main Provisions and Subsequent Successes and Failures

9.3 Macroeconomic and Exchange Rate Policy Coordination in Mercosur

9.4 Brazil's Real Devaluation and the Argentinean Crisis

9.5 Mercosur's Progress towards Common Market

9.6 Mercosur's Deficiency: Lack of Supranational Institutions

9.7 Possible Solutions to Diverging
Macroeconomic Policies

9.8 Conclusion

INDEX

349-358