The New Governance and Implementation of Labour Market Policies

Flemming Larsen
& Rik Van Berkel (eds.)

DJØF Publishing Copenhagen
2009
Table of contents

Chapter 1. Introduction...........................................................................................................7
Flemming Larsen & Rik van Berkel

Chapter 2. Decentralisation and local flexibility in employment services...17
Hugh Mosley

Chapter 3. Redesigning the governance of employment policies
   – Decentralised centralisation in municipal jobcentres..............................................45
Thomas Bredgaard & Flemming Larsen

Chapter 4. Alternative Styles and Roles for Local Governments in Implementing Activation Policies in Germany.................................................................69
Martin Brussig & Matthias Knuth

Chapter 5. Marketization of placement services as a double recommodification of labour........................................................................................95
Petra Kaps

Chapter 6. Bureaucracies under pressure? How Dutch local welfare agencies cope with policy and governance reforms.......................................................115
Rik van Berkel

Chapter 7. The Politics and Governance of Workfare in the U.S. ............139
Evelyn Z. Brodkin

Chapter 8. From Right to Obligation: the Impact of Collective and Public Regulation on the Outplacement for Redundant Workers in Flanders........................................................................................................................165
Ludo Struyven & Peter De Cuyper

Chapter 9. Working-life development based employment services – Is Finland heading for an alternative model?.................................................................187
Robert Arnkil & Timo Spanga

List of contributors .............................................................................................................205