The Legal and Regulatory Aspects of Islamic Banking
A comparative look at the United Kingdom and Malaysia

Abdul Karim Aldohni
Contents

Acknowledgements ................................................. xii
Table of cases ................................................ xiii
Table of legislation ............................................ xiv
Table of statutory instruments ............................... xvi
Table of European legislation ............................... xvii

1 Introduction .................................................. 1

1.1 An overview ................................................. 1
1.1.1 Why is the legal aspect important and challenging? 2
1.1.2 What this book aims to do 2
1.2 Structure of the book 3
1.3 A note on terminology and methods 5

2 The historical and ideological background of Islamic banks .......................... 6

2.1 Introduction ................................................. 6
Part One: The history and development of Islamic banking 8
2.2 Islamic banking development: an overview 8
2.3 Islamic banking in Muslim countries: back to the roots 9
2.3.1 The role of the religious and political factors 9
2.3.2 The role of the economic factor (the oil wealth of the Gulf countries) 11
2.3.3 The economic adoption of the Islamic banking system in Muslim countries 16
2.4 The growth of Islamic banking in the West: the case of the United Kingdom 20
2.4.1 The unique financial position of London 21
2.4.2 The danger of the informal Islamic financial institutions (terrorist finance) 23
Contents

2.4.3 The attraction of oil wealth 24
2.4.4 Investing and saving the growing wealth of the Muslim minorities 25
2.4.5 Economic globalisation 25

Part Two: The theoretical foundation of Islamic banking — the religious, economic and ethical aspects 26
2.5 The ideological background of Islamic banking 26
2.5.1 Islamic theory of the market, money and economy 27
2.5.2 The religious justification of Islamic banking: the prohibition of interest 29
2.5.3 The economic justification of Islamic banking 33
2.5.4 The ethical dimension of Islamic banking 35

3 Legal analysis of the English legal system in comparison to the Islamic legal system 37
3.1 Introduction 37
3.2 The legal structure of both systems: an overview 37
3.3 The legal sources of both systems: some basic similarities 39
  3.3.1 The customary origins of the legal rules 39
  3.3.2 The role of the judges (the judicial precedents) 41
  3.3.3 The meaning and role of equity principles in both systems 46
  3.3.4 Legal presumption as an integrated division of both systems 48
3.4 The role of logic in legal reasoning in both systems 50
  3.4.1 Deductive logic 51
  3.4.2 Legal analogy 52
3.5 A possible legal interaction between both systems 54

4 The legal description and classification of Islamic banks under the English law 56
4.1 Introduction 56
Part One: The legal definition of a ‘bank’ 57
4.2 The meaning of ‘bank’ under the UK banking legal framework 57
4.3 The common law definition of a ‘bank’ 57
  4.3.1 The development of the definition of ‘banking business’ 57
  4.3.2 The distinctive characteristics of ‘banking business’ 58
  4.3.3 The elements imposed by the factual circumstances of the business 60
4.4 The statutory definition of ‘bank’ 61
  4.4.1 The UK dimension 61
  4.4.2 The EU dimension 63
Contents

4.5 The legal status of Islamic banks under the UK banking legal framework 64
  4.5.1 Defining Islamic banks in the light of the English case law 64
  4.5.2 The description of Islamic banks in view of the statute 70

Part Two: Locating Islamic banks in the main banking categories of the UK banking sector 71
4.6 The main categories in the banking market 71
  4.6.1 Commercial and merchant 'investment' banks: the nature of the business 72
  4.6.2 The impact of economic deregulation on the banking sector 74
4.7 Addressing the position of Islamic banks 76

5 Islamic banks in practice: the operational aspects of Islamic banking 78
  5.1 Introduction 78
  5.2 The formation of an Islamic bank 79
  5.3 The operations of Islamic banks 85
    5.3.1 Islamic law doctrines of commerce and contracts 85
    5.3.2 The contracts used by Islamic banks: an overview 91
  5.4 The main categories of Islamic banking contract 91
    5.4.1 Intermediation contracts 91
    5.4.2 Transaction contracts 94
  5.5 Legal concerns arising from the finance modes and structure of Islamic banking 101
    5.5.1 Corporate governance of Islamic banks 102
    5.5.2 The lack of an accurate legal frame for Islamic mortgages 108
    5.5.3 Tax law and Islamic banking financial products 108
    5.5.4 The legal binding power of the promise in the case of Murabaha agreement 111
    5.5.5 Islamic banking cases in the English court: the applied law 112

6 The banking regulatory and supervisory system in the United Kingdom: an overview 122
  6.1 Introduction 122
  6.2 The unique contribution of banks to the economic fabric of society 123
  6.3 The need for banking regulation 124
  6.4 The key rationales for banking regulation 125
6.4.1 The cardinal role of banks in the economy: the social and ethical aspects 125
6.4.2 Market imperfections 126
6.4.3 The intertwined nature of the banking sector 127
6.4.4 The vulnerable nature of banking business 128
6.4.5 Systemic risk in the banking sector: the deadly results 130
6.5 The regulator of the banking sector in the United Kingdom 131
6.5.1 The transformation to a formalised regulatory system 132
6.5.2 The unified regulatory system 132
6.6 The regulator's objectives and strategy 136
6.6.1 The regulatory objectives 136
6.6.2 The techniques of the regulator 139
6.7 The international aspect of banking regulations 149

7 The application of Islamic banking under the conventional banking regulation of the United Kingdom: fit or conflict? 152
7.1 Introduction 152
7.2 The rationale for regulation in the case of Islamic banks 153
7.2.1 Islamic banks contribution to the economy 153
7.2.2 Information asymmetry 153
7.2.3 The vulnerable nature of Islamic banking business 154
7.2.4 Islamic banks and systemic risk 156
7.3 The relationship between Islamic banks and the financial authorities 157
7.3.1 The Financial Services Authority and Islamic banks 157
7.3.2 The Bank of England and Islamic banks 172
7.4 The applicability of the safety-net schemes in the case of Islamic banking 173
7.4.1 Deposit insurance scheme 173
7.4.2 Lender of last resort 176
7.5 The applicability of international banking standards in the context of Islamic banking 178
7.5.1 Islamic banking and Basel Core Principles for Effective Banking Supervision 178
7.5.2 Islamic banks and Basel II 179

8 Islamic banking in Malaysia: the Malaysian case study – a legal analysis 183
8.1 Why is Malaysia an important case study? 183
8.2 The Malaysian economy and its financial system: an overview 184
8.3 An overview of the Malaysian legal system 186
8.3.1 The evolution of Islam 186
8.3.2 British colonisation 187
8.4 Potential differences between Malaysia and the UK in relation to Islamic banking 190
8.4.1 The evolution of Islamic banking in the Malaysian banking system 191
8.4.2 The introduction of the Islamic Banking Act 1983 192
8.5 Some of the lead legal regulatory challenges regarding Islamic banking: the Malaysian approach 194
8.5.1 Lender of last resort in relation to Islamic banks 194
8.5.2 Deposit insurance scheme 196
8.5.3 Corporate governance in an Islamic banking institution 199
8.5.4 Islamic banking cases in non-Sharia courts: the applied law 203

9 Concluding remarks 207

9.1 Locating Islamic law in the English legal system 207
9.2 The impact of the UK conventional legal framework on Islamic banking 209
9.2.1 The laws that govern the structure and contracts of Islamic banks 210
9.2.2 Prudential banking regulation and international banking standards 212
9.3 Some reflections on the findings 215
9.3.1 The impact on the prosperity of the Islamic banking sector 215
9.3.2 The impact on the Islamic nature of this banking sector 216
9.4 Some reflections on possible future developments 217

Bibliography 221
Index 237