Contents

Foreword by Professor Susan Fainstein, Harvard University
Preface
Contributors

PART I  INTRODUCTION

1. Making Competitive Cities: Debates and Challenges
   Sako Musterd and Alan Murie
   - Debates and challenges
   - Sectors
   - Questions and theories
   - Regions and sources
   - Pathways, actors and policies
   - References

2. The Idea of the Creative or Knowledge-Based City
   Sako Musterd and Alan Murie
   - Essential conditions for competitive cities
   - ‘Hard’ conditions theory
   - Cluster theory
   - Personal networks
   - ‘Soft’ conditions theory
   - Three parts
   - References

PART II  PATHWAYS

3. Pathways in Europe
   Denis Eckert, Alan Murie and Sako Musterd
   - Path dependency
   - Initial expectations and comparisons
   - The chapters to come
   - References

4. Stable Trajectories Towards the Creative Knowledge City?
   Amsterdam, Munich and Milan
   Anne von Streit, Marco Bontje and Elena dell’Agnese
   - Introduction
   - The economic base and the creative knowledge economy
   - Development path: roots and current conditions of the creative knowledge economy
   - Development paths: a synthesis and conclusion
   - References
Contents

5 Reinventing the City: Barcelona, Birmingham and Dublin 67
Veronica Crossa, Montserrat Pareja-Eastaway and Austin Barber
Introduction 67
Historical context 68
The trajectory of industrial development 69
The state and policy intervention 76
The challenge of soft factors 85
Conclusions 89
References 91

6 Institutional Change and New Development Paths: Budapest, Leipzig, Poznan, Riga and Sofia 93
Tadeusz Stryjakiewicz, Joachim Burdack and Tamás Egedy
Introduction 93
Socio-economic characteristics of the study areas 95
Development pathways shaping the city profiles and the role of the systemic change 99
Determinants of development of the creative knowledge sector 106
Conclusions 109
Acknowledgements 110
References 110

7 Changing Specialisations and Single Sector Dominance: Helsinki and Toulouse 113
Hélène Martin-Brelot and Kaisa Kepsu
Introduction 113
Setting the context – Helsinki and Toulouse 115
Pathways to knowledge-driven economies 119
Knowledge driving economic development: sciences, industries and policies 126
Future challenges 129
Conclusion and discussion 130
References 132

PART III ACTORS 135

8 What Works for Managers and Highly Educated Workers in Creative Knowledge Industries? 137
Sako Musterd and Alan Murie
Introduction 137
Three groups of actors and a range of conditions 139
The following chapters 142
References 143
9 Managers and Entrepreneurs in Creative and Knowledge-Intensive Industries: What Determines Their Location?
Toulouse, Helsinki, Budapest, Riga and Sofia
Evgenii Dainov and Arnis Sauka

Introduction: places matter
Cities and the creative class: major conceptual challenges
Characteristics of the cities: a brief overview
Location decisions: ‘individual trajectory’ considerations and ‘hard’ factors
Location decisions: the role of ‘soft’ factors
In-city location decisions
Capital city versus provincial city location decisions
Policymaking: ‘soft’, ‘hard’ or ‘other’?
Conclusions and implications
Acknowledgement
References

10 Transnational Migrants in the Creative Knowledge Industries:
Amsterdam, Barcelona, Dublin and Munich
Heike Pethe, Sabine Hafner and Philip Lawton

Introduction
Conceptualising transnational migrants and the creative class
Places and potentials
The attractiveness of European metropolitan regions
Conclusion
Acknowledgments
References

11 Attracting Young and High-Skilled Workers: Amsterdam, Milan and Barcelona
Montserrat Pareja-Eastaway, Marco Bontje and Marianne d'Ovidio

Introduction
Competing for young, high-skilled workers
Young and high-skilled workers in European cities
The Amsterdam, Barcelona and Milan city-regions
Conclusions
References

12 Working on the Edge? Creative Jobs in Birmingham, Leipzig and Poznan
Julie Brown, Robert Nadler and Michal Meczynski

Introduction: creative work – precariousness, uncertainty and risk?
Methodology
Insecure, casualised or long-term, sustainable employment?
Discussion 223
Conclusions 227
References 229

PART IV POLICIES 233

13 What Policies Should Cities Adopt? 235
Alan Murie and Sako Musterd
Introduction 235
What should cities do? 235
European cities 237
Which policy agendas? 239
Networking policy 240
The following chapters 241
References 243

14 Strategic Economic Policy: Milan, Dublin and Toulouse 244
Silvia Mugnano, Enda Murphy and Hélène Martin-Brelot
Introduction 244
Distinctive policy traditions 245
Existing strengths in creative knowledge policy 247
New strategic economic policy approaches 250
Key actors in entrepreneurial cities 253
Addressing barriers and obstacles 257
Conclusion and new challenges 259
References 261

15 Beyond Cluster Policy? Birmingham, Poznan and Helsinki 263
Caroline Chapain, Krzysztof Stachowiak and Mari Vaattovaara
Introduction 263
The cluster policy paradigm 264
The state of the creative and knowledge economy 266
Supporting the creative and knowledge economy:
three approaches 268
Conclusions 281
Acknowledgments 284
References 284

16 Policies for Firms or Policies for Individuals? Amsterdam,
Munich and Budapest 286
Zoltán Kovács, Heike Pethe and Manfred Miosga
Introduction 286
Do policies help in competition? – a theoretical framework 287
Economic development and political conditions 290
The creative and knowledge sector and policies enhancing its development 294
Conclusions 302
References 303

17 New Governance, New Geographic Scales,
New Institutional Settings 306
Bastian Lange, Marc Pradel i Miquel and Vassil Garnizov
Introduction 306
Conceptual prerequisites: understanding governance in creative and knowledge industries 308
New governance dimensions 309
Professionalisation – self-regulation and self-governance of new professions 310
Towards new geographical scales? 312
Governance approaches in Barcelona, Leipzig and Sofia 314
Knowledge-intensive industries in regard to governance perspectives 321
Conclusions 322
Acknowledgements 324
References 324

PART V SYNTHESIS 327

18 Synthesis: Re-making the Competitive City 329
Sako Musterd and Alan Murie
Introduction 329
A city is not a T-shirt 331
Multi-layered cities: the importance of pathways 333
Personal actor networks: key conditions 338
New governance approaches 344
Conclusion 347
References 349

Index 351