

Reconfiguring Knowledge Production

Changing Authority Relationships in the Sciences and their Consequences for Intellectual Innovation

Edited by
RICHARD WHITLEY,
JOCHEN GLÄSER,
and
LARS ENGWALL

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents^{to them}

List of Contributors	ix
Introduction
1 Reconfiguring the Public Sciences: The Impact of Governance Changes on Authority and Innovation in Public Science Systems Richard Whitley	3
I Reorganizing Academia: Delegating Authority while Increasing Accountability in Universities
2 The UK Research Assessment Exercise: A Case of Regulatory Capture? Ben Martin and Richard Whitley	51
3 Research Funding, Authority Relations, and Scientific Production in Switzerland Martin Benninghoff and Dietmar Braun	81
4 The Changing Governance of Japanese Public Science Robert Kneller	110
II Reorganizing Research Organizations: Shifting Authority Relations between Teams, Departments, and Employers
5 Informed Authority? The Limited Use of Research Evaluation Systems for Managerial Control in Universities Jochen Gläser, Stefan Lange, Grit Laudel, and Uwe Schimank	149
6 Changing Authority Relations within French Academic Research Units since the 1960s: From Patronage to Partnership Severine Louvel	184

Contents

7	Mission Now Possible: Profile Building and Leadership in German Universities Frank Meier and Uwe Schimank	211
III Reorganizing Scientific Fields: Changing Authority Relations and Intellectual Innovations
8	Authority Relations as Condition for, and Outcome of, Shifts in Governance: The Limited Impact of the UK Research Assessment Exercise on the Biosciences Norma Morris	239
9	Mediating Problem Choice: Academic Researchers' Responses to Changes in their Institutional Environment Liudvika Leišytė, Jürgen Enders, and Harry de Boer	266
10	The Limits of Universality: How Field-Specific Epistemic Conditions Affect Authority Relations and their Consequences Jochen Gläser, Stefan Lange, Grit Laudel, and Uwe Schimank	291
11	Public Science Systems, Higher Education, and the Trajectory of Academic Disciplines: Business Studies in the United States and Europe Lars Engwall, Matthias Kipping, and Behlül Üsdiken	325
Concluding Reflections
12	From Governance to Authority Relations? Jochen Gläser	357
	Index	371