

Financial Globalization

Growth, Integration, Innovation and Crisis

Dilip K. Das

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

List of Tables and Figure	xiii
Preface	xiv
Acknowledgements	xix
About the Author	xx
1 The Evolution and Unfolding of Financial Globalization	1
1. Economic and financial globalization	1
1.1 Global capital flows and their implications	3
1.2 A matter of definition	5
1.3 Measures of financial globalization	6
2. Financial globalization: The preceding periods	7
2.1 Ancient periods	7
2.2 Contemporary period: The first era of globalization	8
2.3 Gold standard monetary regime	9
2.4 Proliferation of financial globalization	11
2.5 Utilization of financial resources	14
2.6 Melancholy period of deglobalization	15
2.7 The Bretton Woods system and the Eurodollar market	17
2.8 The great moderation: The post-Bretton Woods era	20
3. Engendering partial convergence	22
4. Latter half of the twentieth century	23
4.1 Asymmetric initiation	25
4.2 Proliferation of prosperity	26
4.3 Global economic integration through upgradation of policies and institutions	28
5. Shifting gears of globalization: The second era of globalization	30
5.1 Neo-Liberal policy environment	32
5.2 Principal drivers of financial globalization	34
5.3 Impact on financial integration	36

6. Global capital movement and trade in financial services	37
6.1 Prominent attributes of financial globalization	39
6.2 Learning from the emerging trends	43
6.3 Information technology and financial markets	45
7. Innovation through securitization	45
8. Destabilizing impact of financial globalization	49
8.1 Financial crises then	50
8.2 Financial crises now	51
9. Contemporary global integration and expanding middle-class	54
10. Summary and conclusions	56
References	62
2 Financial Globalization and the Shifting Sands in Contemporary Financial Markets	68
1. Introduction	68
2. Resumption of financial globalization	71
2.1 Reviving the global capital markets	72
2.2 Trilemma leading to conflicting policy stance	74
2.3 Dormant capital markets in the Bretton Woods era	76
2.4 Floating exchange rate regime and capital mobility	77
3. Gearing up for financial globalization	79
3.1 Macroeconomic reforms	79
3.2 Elimination of controls and regulations	80
3.3 Liberalization and deregulation	82
3.4 Espousing privatization	84
3.5 Financial innovation	85
4. Drivers of financial globalization in the contemporary era	88
5. Transformations in global financial landscape	91
5.1 Dawn of the cross-border syndicated bank loan market	92
5.2 Contribution of Brady bonds to financial integration and globalization	93
5.3 Financial integration and the developing economies	96

5.4	Transformation in the financial markets of the developing countries	97
5.5	Financial deepening in the contemporary period	98
5.6	Impact of financial crises and setbacks	99
6.	Benefits of enhanced access to global capital markets	100
7.	Surge in global private financial flows to the developing economies	102
7.1	Syndicated private bank lending	102
7.2	Bond issuance in the international bond markets	103
7.3	FDI and portfolio equities	105
8.	International banks and the developing economies	109
9.	Pro-cyclicality in global capital flows	110
10.	Asymmetrical progress in financial globalization	112
11.	Financial globalization and convergence of capitalism	116
12.	Summary and conclusions	118
	References	121
3	Global Financial Crisis: The Great Recession and the Approaching Recovery	126
1.	Onset of the global financial crisis and recession	126
1.1	Financial crisis spills out globally	127
1.2	Failure of the economics profession	129
2.	Principal contributing factors	130
3.	Liquidity crunch	134
4.	Estimates of direct and indirect losses	135
5.	Averting the second great depression	138
6.	Creeping financial deglobalization	141
6.1	Contracting multilateral trade and plunging trans-border financial flows	141
6.2	Plummeting global FDI flows	143
6.3	Contraction in the global economy	144
7.	Sparks of an inchoate recovery from the crisis	145
7.1	Tenuous recovery in the advanced industrial economies	147
7.2	Early and strong rebound of China	148
8.	The Group-of-Twenty: Its role in stabilizing the global economy	150

9.	Inevitable structural realignment in the global economy and financial sector	152
9.1	Descent of the dollar from its high perch	154
9.2	New global equilibrium	157
9.3	Vision of a post-crisis global economic landscape	159
10.	A corporate perspective of financial crisis and approaching recovery	160
11.	Summary and conclusions	161
	References	164
4	Financial Globalization and the Integrating Emerging-Market Economies	168
1.	Financial integration of the emerging-market economies	168
2.	What are emerging-market economies?	170
2.1	Common characteristics	172
2.2	Growing significance in the global financial markets	173
2.3	Country classification conundrum	177
3.	Differentiating financial globalization in the EMEs	178
4.	Capital flows to the EMEs: Qualitative and quantitative dimensions	179
4.1	Post-oil shock era and the Latin American debt crisis	179
4.2	Transforming scenario of the 1990s	181
4.3	On the eve of the Asian crisis	184
4.4	Dawn of the twenty-first century	187
5.	An Extraordinary phase of financial globalization in the EMEs	189
6.	Transforming debt structure of firms in the EMEs	193
7.	Case study of China and India	194
8.	Current global financial crisis and the emerging-market economies	196
8.1	Transmission of financial stress	200
8.2	Composition of recovery from the crisis	201
8.3	Challenges pushed to the fore by the crisis	202
8.4	How much did the financial crisis impair the EMEs?	203

9.	Did the Asian EMEs play an extraordinary role?	204
9.1	Asian EMEs and the green shoots of recovery	205
9.2	Medium-term ramifications of the financial crisis on the Asian EMEs	207
9.3	China's role in propping up the rebound of the regional and global economy	208
10.	Prospects for the global financial institutions during the credit crunch	209
11.	Summary and conclusions	210
	References	214
5	Macroeconomic Ramifications of Financial Globalization	218
1.	Stylized theoretical perspective	218
1.1	Macroeconomic policy relevance	219
1.2	Leaders and followers in financial integration	220
1.3	Neoclassical logic versus the recent nuanced ideas	222
2.	Direct and indirect channels of macroeconomic impact: Empirical evidence	223
2.1	Direct benefit	224
2.2	Uphill capital flows: A question mark on the neoclassical proposition	227
2.3	Indirect benefit	230
2.4	Differing characteristics of financial flows	232
3.	Prerequisite threshold conditions	234
4.	Macroeconomic volatility	235
4.1	Volatility leading to crisis	237
4.2	Risk-sharing implications	239
5.	Policy options in the backdrop of unambiguous evidence	240
6.	Evolving global macro-financial dynamics of surpluses and deficits	241
7.	Summary and conclusions	243
	References	245
6	Sovereign-Wealth Funds: A Paradigm Shift in Capital Flows in the Global Economy	250
1.	Introduction	250
2.	Definition and concept	252
2.1	Principal objectives	253
2.2	Genesis of SWFs	255

2.3	Maturing of SWFs	256
2.4	Global financial crisis: SWFs as strategic investors	259
2.5	An irony of the global financial system?	259
3.	Aggregate assets under management	260
4.	Categorization	261
5.	Management	263
5.1	Investment methods and techniques	264
6.	Market size and growth dynamics	266
7.	Ramifications of a group of large institutional investors	267
7.1	So why the anxiety?	268
7.2	Is the anxiety exaggerated?	270
8.	Squaring the policy circle	270
8.1	Prickly policy issue	271
8.2	Self-Correcting policy measures for the SWFs	271
8.3	Establishing a code of conduct: The Santiago principles	272
8.4	Regulations for guarding against foreign stakes	273
8.5	Reinforcing and refining the Santiago principles further	275
9.	Summary and conclusions	276
	References	278
7	Epilogue	280
	Bibliography	283
	Index	302