CONTENTS

Foreword vii
Acknowledgments xi
Prolegomena to an “Economic Turn” in Jewish History 1
Gideon Reuveni

I. Rethinking the Economy in Jewish History

1. Can Economic History Date the Inception of Jewish Modernity? 23
   Jonathan Karp

2. Wandering as Circulation: Dostoevsky and Marx on the “Jewish Question” 43
   Kirill Postoutenko

3. Money Makes the Jew Go Round: West German Jewry and the Search for Flexibility 62
   Anthony D. Kauders

II. Jews in the Marketplace

4. All Talk or Business as Usual? Brokerage and Schmoozing in a Swiss Urban Society in the Early Nineteenth Century 79
   Susanne Bennewitz

5. Socialists, Bankers, and Sephardic Jews: The Pereire Brothers and the Crédit Mobilier 94
   Helen M. Davies
6. Buying, Selling, Being, Drinking: Jewish Coffeehouse Consumption in the Long Nineteenth Century
Sarah Wobick-Segev

7. Consuming Powers: The "Jewish Department Store" in German Politics and Culture
Paul Lerner

III. Jewish Economies in National and Transnational Contexts

8. Going Native: Moritz Jellinek and the Modernization of the Hungarian Economy
Michael L. Miller

Sarah Abrevaya Stein

10. Trading in Torah: Bootleg Bibles and Secondhand Scripture in the Age of European Imperialism
Adam Mendelsohn

11. Cut to Zionism: The Emergence of the Diamond Industry in British-Ruled Palestine
David De Vries

Contributors to the Volume 222
Selected Bibliography 225
Index 232