Industrial policy in Namibia

Christina Rosendahl

Bonn 2010

This Discussion Paper is part of a series of country case studies under the comparative research project on “Industrial policy in low- and lower-middle income countries” funded by the Bundesministerium für wirtschaftliche Zusammenarbeit und Entwicklung (BMZ) and supported by the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Technische Zusammenarbeit (GTZ). Further case studies see Annex II.
Contents

Abbreviations

Summary

Introduction 3

1 Main challenges for structural transformation 5
1.1 Socio-economic development and sophistication of the economy 5
1.2 Economic structure – challenges and potentials 6
1.3 Framework conditions 10

2 Political background of industrial policymaking 13
2.1 Economic governance 13
2.2 Government effectiveness, transparency and accountability 15

3 Industrial development strategy 18

4 Main strategic elements of industrial policy 22
4.1 Promoting investment in export-oriented manufacturing – Export Processing Zones 22
4.2 SME Development – The Sites and Premises Programme 28
4.3 Value-chain development in agriculture – The Indigenous Plant Task Team 32

5 Quality of industrial policy orientation 36
5.1 Checks and balances in implementing industrial policy programmes 36
5.2 Market- and demand-orientation 38

6 Conclusions 38

Bibliography 41

Annexes 45

I. Interview partners 47

II. Case studies on industrial policy 49