Labour-Market Flexibility and Individual Careers
A Comparative Study

by

SIMONE R. KIRPAL
University of Bremen, Germany

Springer

United Nations
Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization

International Centre for Technical and Vocational Education and Training

UNEVOC
Contents

1 Introduction ................................................................. 1
  1.1 Research Context .................................................. 5
  1.2 Research Questions ............................................... 12
  1.3 Methodological Approach ...................................... 14
    1.3.1 Frameworks of Reference .................................. 14
    1.3.2 Research Steps and Selection of Participants ........... 18
    1.3.3 Interview Method and Data Analysis ....................... 19

2 Skills and Labour Markets in Germany and the UK ................. 23
  2.1 Introduction ....................................................... 23
  2.2 Skills and Labour Markets in Germany .......................... 26
  2.3 Skills and Labour Markets in the UK ............................ 30
  2.4 Flexibility, Mobility and Employability ...................... 34
    2.4.1 Flexibility .................................................. 35
    2.4.2 Mobility and Commitment .................................. 37
    2.4.3 Employability ............................................... 40
  2.5 From ‘Skills’ to ‘Competences’ ................................ 44
  2.6 Reflections ....................................................... 50

3 Work and Career Orientations of Nurses .......................... 55
  3.1 Introduction ....................................................... 55
  3.2 Description of the Nursing Sample ............................. 57
  3.3 Background and Sectoral Context ................................ 67
    3.3.1 Structural Changes in Germany ........................... 67
    3.3.2 The Professionalization of Nursing in Germany and the UK 70
    3.3.3 Structural Changes in the UK ............................... 71
    3.3.4 Basic Training Requirements in Germany and the UK .... 72
  3.4 Modes of Flexibility and Learning Demands ..................... 74
    3.4.1 Organizational Restructuring Geared Towards More Flexible Allocation of Staff and Skills 75
    3.4.2 Increasing Complexity at Work and Extended Role Performance 76
    3.4.3 Changing Professional Profiles and Learning ............ 79
3.5 Work and Career Orientations of Nurses ........................................ 81
  3.5.1 Work Orientations ................................................................. 82
  3.5.2 Career Orientations .............................................................. 89
  3.5.3 Status and External Recognition ............................................. 98
3.6 The Role of Learning, Skills and Professional Development .......... 99
  3.6.1 Skills and Core Competences ............................................... 101
  3.6.2 Learning and Professional Development .................................... 105
3.7 The Role of Peers and Practice Communities .............................. 112
3.8 Conclusions ................................................................................. 118

4 Work and Career Orientations of IT Technicians .......................... 129
  4.1 Description of the IT Sample ...................................................... 130
  4.2 Background and Sectoral Context .............................................. 144
    4.2.1 Skill Shortages as a Dominant Feature ................................... 146
  4.3 Modes of Flexibility and Learning Demands ............................... 149
    4.3.1 UK: Moving Staff Around .................................................. 149
    4.3.2 Germany: Work Organization Along Project-Based Work ......... 151
    4.3.3 Horizontal Mobility as a Means to Profiling One's Own Individual Career .................................................. 153
    4.3.4 High Learning Intensity as Part of the Professional Culture .... 155
  4.4 Work and Career Orientations of IT Technicians ...................... 156
    4.4.1 Type I-1: Employees with Technical Non-IT Background and High Learning Affinity ............................................ 159
    4.4.2 Type I-2: Employees with Background in Telecommunications – Successful Convergence ........................................ 163
    4.4.3 Type I-3: Employees with Background in Telecommunications – Unsuccessful Convergence ........................................ 167
    4.4.4 Type II: IT-Specific Qualification Combined with Strategic Career but Seeking to Align Broader Goals ................ 170
    4.4.5 Type III: No Formal Qualification – The Self-Taught IT Specialist ............................................................... 172
    4.4.6 The Two Faces of Work Centrality and Fast Changing Work Environments ......................................................... 179
  4.5 The Role of Learning, Skills and Professional Development ........ 183
  4.6 The Role of Peers and Practice Communities .............................. 188
  4.7 Conclusions ................................................................................. 191

5 Reflections on Empirical Findings .................................................. 201
  5.1 Nurses and IT Technicians – Summary of Empirical Findings ........ 203
  5.2 German and the UK Labour Markets – Opportunities and Constraints ............................................................ 207
6 Key Issues and Dominant Themes ........................................ 211
  6.1 Control and Agency in Modern Work Contexts ............... 211
  6.2 Creating Coherent Career Narratives and Identity Continuities . 214
    6.2.1 The Notion of 'Identity' .................................. 214
    6.2.2 Work-Related Identities .................................. 217
    6.2.3 Creating Work-Related Identity Continuities ............ 220
  6.3 Tensions Between Careers, Skill Profiles and Work Identity .... 222
    6.3.1 Developing Specialist or General Skills or Both? ....... 222
    6.3.2 Skills and Individual Careers .......................... 223
7 Conclusions ................................................................. 229

Annexure I
  Guidelines for Conducting Interviews with Managers ............ 235

Annexure II
  Guidelines for Interviews with Employees ........................ 237

Appendix: Methods ............................................................. 239
  Research Steps ......................................................... 241
  Database and Sample ................................................. 242

References ................................................................. 251

Author Index ............................................................... 263

Subject Index .............................................................. 267