THE OXFORD HANDBOOK OF CREDIT
DERIVATIVES

Edited by ALEXANDER LIPTON
and
ANDREW RENNIE

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS
CONTENTS

List of Figures  ix
List of Tables  xviii
List of Contributors  xx

PART I INTRODUCTION

1. Non-Technical Introduction  3
   Gillian Tett

2. Technical Introduction  17
   Andrew Rennie and Alexander Lipton

PART II STATISTICAL OVERVIEW

3. Default Recovery Rates and LGD in Credit Risk Modelling and Practice  39
   Edward I. Altman

4. A Guide to Modelling Credit Term Structures  66
   Arthur M. Berd

5. Statistical Data Mining Procedures in Generalized Cox Regressions  123
   Zhen Wei

PART III SINGLE AND MULTI-NAME THEORY

6. An Exposition of CDS Market Models  159
   Lutz Schloegl

7. Single- and Multi-Name Credit Derivatives: Theory and Practice  196
   Alexander Lipton and David Shelton

8. Marshall-Olkin Copula-Based Models  257
   Youssef Elouerkhaoui
9. Contagion Models in Credit Risk 285
   Mark H. A. Davis

10. Markov Chain Models of Portfolio Credit Risk 327
    Tomasz R. Bielecki, Stéphane Crépey and Alexander Herbertsson

11. Counterparty Risk in Credit Derivative Contracts 383
    Jon Gregory

12. Credit Value Adjustment in the Extended Structural Default Model 406
    Alexander Lipton and Artur Sepp

PART IV BEYOND NORMALITY

13. A New Philosophy of the Market 467
    Élie Ayache

14. An EVT primer for credit risk 500
    Valérie Chavez-Demoulin and Paul Embrechts

15. Saddlepoint Methods in Portfolio Theory 533
    Richard J. Martin

PART V SECURITIZATION

16. Quantitative Aspects of the Collapse of the Parallel Banking System 573
    Alexander Batchvarov

17. Home Price Derivatives and Modelling 604
    Alexander Levin

18. A Valuation Model for ABS CDOs 631
    Julian Manzano, Vladimir Kamotski, Umberto Pesavento and Alexander Lipton

Name Index 657

Subject Index 663