The Rise of China and India
Impacts, Prospects and Implications

Edited by
Amelia U. Santos-Paulino
and Guanghua Wan

in association with the United Nations
University-World Institute for Development
Economics Research (UNU-WIDER)
Contents

List of Illustrations ix
List of Abbreviations and Acronyms xiii
Acknowledgements xv
Preface xvi
Foreword xviii
Notes on Contributors xx

Part I The Rise of China and India: Development Strategies and Lessons for Developing Countries

1 Globalization and the Developing World: The Difference that China Makes 3
   Jeffrey Henderson

2 China, South Africa and the Lewis Model 27
   John Knight

3 India's Economic Growth: Lessons for the Emerging Economies 39
   Suparna Chakraborty

Part II Economic Structure and Growth

4 Beyond Industrialization: New Approaches to Development Strategy Based on the Service Sector 61
   Peter Sheehan

5 The Service Sector Revolution in India: A Quantitative Analysis 84
   Rubina Verma

6 China's Development Strategy and Energy Security 108
   Haider A. Khan

7 Identification of Regional Fundamental Economic Structure (FES) of India: An Input–Output and Field of Influence Approach 138
   Sudhir K. Thakur

8 Comparing Regional Development in China and India 173
   Yanrui Wu
9 The Gains from Growth for Women and Informal Workers in India: A SAM-Based CGE Analysis
   Anushree Sinha and Haider A. Khan
   187

Part III  Trade and Regional Development

10 Firm Location Choice in Cities: Evidence from China and India
   Kala Seetharam Sridhar and Guanghua Wan
   203

11 China's Global Growth and Latin American Exports
   Rhys Jenkins
   220

12 Component Trade and China's Global Economic Integration
   Kunwang Li, Ligang Song and Xingjun Zhao
   241

13 The Rise of China and India: Lessons and Implications for Global Development
   Amelia U. Santos-Paulino and Guanghua Wan
   262

Index
   271